Top Civil Servant Quits In Row With Ottawa Gov't

Deputy Trade Minister Out

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Mitchell W. Sharp, deputy minister of trade and commerce, one of the ablest senior members of the federal civil service is resigning his government post.

Mr. Sharp's resignation will be effective at the end of April. The deputy minister who has been closely associated with the federal government's wheat policies over a number of years as well as administering trade and commerce policies has had a number of attractive offers from private firms. Mr. Sharp declined to confirm or deny he would be leaving the government's service.

"I have no comment, it will all come out in due course," he said.

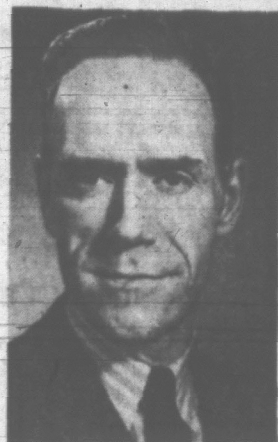

Trade Minister Gordon Churchill said he had already granted Mr. Sharp a month's leave of absence effective March 31.

However, Mr. Churchill disclosed he had received at noon a copy of Mr. Sharp's resignation letter which was addressed to Prime Minister John Diefenbaker.

No Decision on Successor

Mr. Churchill declined to comment on a possible successor. He said he naturally had given the matter some thought but he had no statement to make at this time.

Mr. Sharp's resignation will probably be followed by others. During the last session of parliament there were rumblings among the private members on the government side that suggested that more than one prominent member of the civil service would find a less than congenial atmosphere in which to work. A. D. McPhlips, Progressive Conservative member for Victoria, B.C., made a speech in the Commons in which he attacked some members of the federal civil service claiming that they had worked too long with the Liberal administration and should be shifted out of their posts.

MITCHELL W. SHARP

he would prefer to resign after the Conservatives assumed office with a large majority. While not wishing to leave the public service, Mr. Sharp was understood to be ready to resign if he did not have the full confidence of the new government. The fact that he is resigning would indicate that Mr. Churchill has made no effort to retain Mr. Sharp in the public service.

Under such circumstances more than one member of the civil service is reported to be giving serious consideration to lucrative offers from private business or industry when they are made. Mr. Sharp has been in government service for 16 years, first with the department of finance and then with the trade department. He was appointed assistant deputy trade minister in 1950. The following year he became associate deputy minister, taking over the top trade department civil service post of deputy minister last year. Mr. Sharp's signature was on the controversial "hidden report" which Prime Minister Diefenbaker maintained gave the former Liberal administration an indication that trade recession was beginning early last year.

ALL THAT'S LEFT OF ONCE PROUD AIRLINER

Twisted and crumbled pieces of wreckage bear witness to the terrific smash which snuffed out the lives of 47 people aboard a Capital Airlines Viscount airliner which crashed at Midland, Mich., airport Sunday night. The crash was one of the worst air tragedies in U.S. civilian aviation history. — (AP wirephoto)

TEST PROVES SUCCESS

Skipper Sails Over Blasted Rock Stump

By DON INGHAM

Proof of the value of the $3,100,000 Ripple Rock blast Saturday was provided by a daring coastwise skipper who sailed his vessel directly over the battered stump of the once-dreaded navigation menace in Seymour Narrows.

Mother Saves Two Children, Dies With Third

EASTVIEW, Ont. (CP) — A young mother today saved two of her children from their blazing apartment, then perished herself when she returned to get her third child.

Mrs. Jean-Guy Brunet, 22, hurried Denis, 4, and Michele, 3, from the apartment and business block in this suburb of Ottawa after a neighbor warned her the building was burning. She collapsed in the kitchen near the bedroom where Monique, 2, died in her crib clutching a doll.

Firemen found her burned body partly protected by a mattress with her arms outstretched towards the bedroom door. About 50 persons were successfully evacuated from the burning wood-and-brick siding building. Even as the front part of the building burned, residents dumped furniture, bedding and other belongings out rear windows into the street.

It took about an hour for firemen to bring the flames under control.

Rail Lines Hit

HALIFAX (CP) — Repair crews of the Dominion Atlantic Railway worked today to patch up lines washed out by the highest tides of the year.

Service between Truro and Windsor, N.S., is not expected to resume until Tuesday. A 200-foot section of track at South Maitland is washed out.

FRANK COSTELLO

Costello Wins Fight to Keep Citizenship

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today threw out denaturalization proceedings against New York racketeer Frank Costello.

The unanimous decision gave Costello a clear-cut victory in his fight against U.S. government efforts to cancel his 1925 naturalization and thus pave the way to deport him.

The court made no direct reference to a contention by Costello's lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams, that the government's case was "permeated by wiretapping."

Costello had appealed to the Supreme Court from a decision by the U.S. circuit court in New York that the government's denaturalization case had been dismissed erroneously.

U.S. Air Crash Takes 47 Lives

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — A Capital Airlines Viscount airliner slammed into the mulch of an old corn field during an Easter snowstorm Sunday night, killing all 47 persons aboard.

A chief Civil Aeronautics Bureau inspector said today it probably will take at least the rest of the week to find out the cause of the crash.

The big plane, powered by four turbo-prop engines, plunged into the ground about 2,300 feet short of a Tri-City Airport runway. The airport serves Midland, Saginaw and Bay City.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Investigator Fred G. Powell said a preliminary investigation indicated the craft exploded after hitting the ground. He added, however, that it is too early to determine even a possible cause for the disaster, worst in the history of commercial aviation in Michigan.

Officials said there was "no chance" of escape from the four-engined turbo-prop plane. Some charred bodies were found in the shattered wreckage. Others were scattered across a wide area.

No Canadians were aboard the plane, bound from New York to Chicago via Michigan.

Tri-City Airport control tower officials said snow was falling as the plane approached for a landing. Visibility was three miles, the ceiling 900 feet at the time of the crash.

"By the time we got there, we realized everybody was gone," said Warner Law, owner of the farm on which the plane crashed. "There was no chance of anybody getting out. The plane came in hard. It didn't fall. It ran into the ground."

Nelson Girardin, who had stopped at the east-central Michigan airport with his family to watch the plane land, said: "One minute the plane's lights were barely visible through the rain-snow... the next minute they abruptly headed earthward. A second later there was a blinding flash of orange flame spurring nearly 100 feet in the air, followed by a muffled explosion."

Girardin said the plane apparently landed "almost squarely on its nose," then flipped over on its back, a flaming mass of wreckage.

The crew was identified as Capt. W. J. Hull, 33, Washington Township, N.J.; First Officer Earle M. Binckley, 27, Levittown, N.Y., and Ruth Dencke, 27, East Aurora, N.Y., the stewardess.

Civil Aeronautics authorities said it was the first major mishap to a Viscount in North America. Capital Airlines said Hull was one of the airline's "million-mile" pilots. He had been with Capital since 1941.

Airline officials in Washington said the crash was the first Capital Airlines accident involving a passenger fatality since December, 1949, and the first killing a crew member in 4½ years.

CENTRED IN SOUTHERN ALASKA OR ALEUTIANS

Severe Earthquake Recorded Here

A "very severe" earthquake centred about 1,900 miles northwest of Victoria, possibly in southern Alaska or the Aleutians, was recorded on the seismograph of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory here today.

Dominion seismologist W. G. Milne said if the quake had occurred in a centre of population "it could have caused considerable havoc."

The earthquake was recorded starting at 7.36 a.m. city time and lasted about an hour.

There was little chance of it being felt in this area, Mr. Milne said. No reports were received from residents.

The earthquake was of 7.5 intensity on the Richter's scale of measurement. Largest on record is 8.5. In 1949 an earthquake on the Queen Charlotte Islands measured 8.

FREQUENT Earthquakes are frequent in the Pacific arc extending from the Aleutians to Alaska.

Reports of the quake were received from throughout the United States following the first report from Fairbanks, Alaska. The University of Alaska said it was the largest shock ever recorded on the university seismograph.

No damage was reported in the city, although light fixtures swayed and equipment tumbled from the shelves of the Fairbanks News-Miner newspaper office.

There is no immediate way of telling whether the shock core was offshore or on the mainland.

At Sitka, Alaska, the Coast and Geodetic Survey said the quake may have centred in the area where offshore shocks have caused heavy tidal waves in the past.

The biggest quake-triggered wave, April 1, 1946, took 173 lives, mostly in the Hawaiian Islands and caused an estimated $26,000,000 damage to the islands. Another tidal wave, April 9 last year, did about $2,000,000 damage to the Hawaiian Islands.

Seismologists in the observatory at Oahu, Hawaii, said there was no danger of a tidal wave from the present earthquake.

Boat Mishap Fatal to 2

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP) — A happy Easter outing ended in tragedy Sunday when a small boat struck a log and capsized in Tongass Harbor, south of here. Two of the three persons aboard were drowned.

Dead are Dennis Hicks, 13, and Mrs. Dorothy Dundas. The dead boy's mother, Mrs. George Hicks, was rescued after she clung to the overturned boat two hours.

NEW VIOLENCE ROCKS CYPRUS

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters) — A wave of bomb attacks continued today with fresh explosions that brought the toll to 34 since April 1, third anniversary of the EOKA terrorist organization. No deaths were reported.

The outlawed EOKA group supports union of this British island colony with Greece.

During the night, masked terrorists blew up a police station at Koutraphas, 25 miles west of here.

In one of the most daring raids for months, they forced Cypriot policemen to leave the building, bored holes in the walls and inserted dynamite charges.

11 Killed When Train Crushes Car

Quebec Victims Were All Related

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A car-train crash near Sherbrooke, Que., in which 11 persons, all related, were killed, sent Canada's accidental death toll for the three-day Easter holiday soaring to at least 48. Seven of the Quebec crash dead were children.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local time Thursday until midnight Sunday showed 35 persons died in traffic mishaps. There were four drownings—three in Ontario one in Quebec—and two fire deaths, one in Ontario, one in Manitoba.

Quebec reported the highest number of deaths — 21, 18 in traffic. The 11 dead in the level-crossing accident were all in one car returning from an Easter Sunday outing. No one aboard the train was injured.

MAIN LINE BLOCKED

The crash halted all railway traffic on the CPR's Montreal-Mainline. Killed were: Elidor Larose, 38, of Waterloo, Que., his wife, 38, and their five children, Ronald, 14, Ginette, 12, Jean Pierre, 9, Alain, 5, and Andre, 2; Jean Claude Roy, 27, of Joliette, Que.; his wife, 23, and their two children, Marcel, 4, and Micheline, 3. The two families were related.

Mrs. Axel Setter and daughter Darlene, 14, of Spirit River, Alta., along with Louis-Victor, 51, of Edmonton, died in a two-car collision Friday near Ponoka, 60 miles south of Edmonton.

British Columbia's violent deaths occurred Saturday.

A two-car collision near Burnaby took the life of Joe Weiber. Andrew Heaven, 37, fell seven storeys over a railing in a downtown Vancouver hotel.

Vancouver Island police reported a fatality-free holiday, although there were a number of traffic accidents and several persons injured.

Wolves Need 2 Victories

LONDON (Reuters) — Eighty-four English soccer teams clashed today in the windup of a heavy schedule of Easter weekend games which brought no major shift in the home stretch race for league honors.

Wolverhampton Wanderers, who lead the first division, notched another win in London, shutting out Arsenal 2-0.

FIVE KILLED BY SPEEDING TRAIN

'The Kids Didn't Have a Chance'

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Horrified picknickers saw a speeding train plow through five children trapped on a lofty railroad trestle Sunday. All five died.

A sixth youngster raced to safety at one end of the mile-long viaduct moments ahead of the Southern Pacific's Sunset Limited.

Engineer J. W. Euforth jammed on the emergency brakes in vain while scores of the 300 persons gathered for Easter Sunday picnics screamed for the four girls and one boy to jump.

The youngsters were caught about a quarter of a mile out on the bridge past a curve hiding the train's approach. At that point the viaduct towers 40 feet above the bed of the Medina River.

Among those gathered below to eat their noon meal in a park were about 50 relatives of the children.

Three children of Mrs. Paula Garza, San Antonio, and two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Ramirez, were killed. Ramirez is Mrs. Garza's brother.

The dead: Diana Garza, 11; Louis Garza, 12; Laura Garza, 16; Anna Maria Ramirez, 13, and Norma Ramirez, 15. Norma died at a hospital several hours later. The others were killed outright.

Manuel Ramirez, 12, scrambled off one end of the trestle seconds ahead of the train.

Engineer Euforth said the train was travelling 60 miles an hour as it rounded the curve.

"The kids didn't have a chance," he said. "There was no place for them to go."

TEHRAN, Iran—The Shah of Iran Saturday night tearfully signed the final papers officially ending his seven-year marriage to young and beautiful Queen Soraya because she failed to give him a male heir.

A court announcement said the divorce papers will be delivered to Soraya in Cologne, Germany, and that the shah may remarry within 100 days. But a court source said it would be longer than that before the saddened shah takes another bride, his third.

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C.

—Retired Army Gen. James M. Gavin said Saturday the United States must do a lot better if it is to catch up with Russia in the race for outer space achievements.

"Look what the Russians have done. They've put a 1,100-pounder up there. Our biggest is only 34 pounds," Gavin said in an interview. "We have to do better, a lot better," he remarked.

Gavin commented that he believes the world is just on the threshold of space achievements and that this country has barely put its toe across that threshold.

LONDON—Mrs. Elsie Bambridge, daughter of Rudyard Kipling, doesn't approve of what crooner Frank Sinatra has done to the words of her father's "The Road to Mandalay."

"I've refused permission for his record to be issued,"

she told the Sunday Dispatch Sunday.

Mrs. Bambridge objected to the substitution of the word "cat" for "man" and of "broad" for "girl."

WASHINGTON—The long dark night may be nearing an end for Ezra Pound, the unstable giant of American poetry.

A Washington law firm plans to file a court petition this week seeking to free the 73-year-old poet from the mental hospital where he has been confined since 1946 when he was ruled incompetent to stand trial for treason.

The firm said it would institute the motion without fee at the request of poet Robert Frost. The motion will seek against Pound.

LONDON—The Earl of Ypres died Saturday at the age of 76.

He was the son of the first earl who, as Field Marshal Sir John French, commanded the British expeditionary force in France during the First World War.

Lord Ypres himself served in the war from 1915 to 1917. His son, Viscount French, succeeds to the title.

rock, ships were confined to one side of the channel. Deviation from their course put them in the way of the underwater mountain of Ripple Rock, and when there were two ships meeting in the narrows, it was decidedly perilous.

Now, with a minimum of 47 feet of water over the rock at low tide, ships can use the whole of the 2,500-foot channel.

A mass of information recorded on seismographs at the blast scene, elsewhere on Vancouver Island, and throughout B.C. will be collected at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, according to W. G. Milne, observatory seismologist.

Films must be developed before any actual information can be studied, Mr. Milne said.

DIDN'T SEE BLAST

"I didn't even see the blast," he said. "I was at the bottom of the Quadra Island bunker when it went off."

The shock wave from the blast was recorded at Edmonton, but it was doubted whether it would be noted beyond that point. It failed to register at Montreal.

Evaluation of the explosion recordings by six Alberta seismograph crews was to be made in a special meeting at Calgary this afternoon of the Canadian Society of Exploration Geophysicists, Dr. D. C. Skeels, chairman of the international geophysical year committee of CSEG.

"At least two or three usable recordings will be available for immediate study," Dr. Skeels said, "but a complete report cannot be issued until the Dominion observatory in Ottawa has made a study of the integrated reports submitted by all groups involved in recording the shock waves travelling below the earth's surface."

Fate of fish in the area has not yet been determined fully, but early reports indicate that they fared better than was anticipated and that only "minor damage" occurred.

DEAD FISH FOUND

Dr. Andrew Needler of the Pacific Biological Station, Nanaimo, said that 30 minutes after the blast only 80 dead fish could be found, and all were varieties of rock cod. There were no salmon or herring found.

Among other casualties were a seagull seen flying over the rock three seconds before blast time, and two diving birds found dead by investigators.

Fortunate survivors were five killer whales which were seen "sauntering" south toward the rock before the blast and hurrying north after it, two sea lions, a fur seal and a school of porpoises.

Most interest, however, centered in fish set out in cages at fixed distances from the blast scene, and full reports were not available until later this week.

City Sportsman Dies During Golf Tournament

Well-known city sportsman and provincial government employee, William Walter Levy, 43, of 4285 Quadra, died in St. Joseph's Hospital about 10.45 a.m. today after collapsing on the Gorge Vale golf course during a B.C. Government Employees' Association tournament.

Born and educated in Victoria, he had worked in the land registry office for many years. He had been active playing softball and was in demand as a basketball referee. As well, he had been a member of the Victoria Horticultural Society and was a member of Mount Newton A.F. AM.

Survivors include the widow, Patricia; son Dennis; and daughter Keen; his father, W. G. Levy; brother Gordon; and sister Amelia, all of Victoria.

Sands Mortuary will handle funeral arrangements, to be announced later.

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson countered that the report was not "hidden"; that it had been in the hands of the Conservative government for months. He charged that Mr. Diefenbaker had abused the name of a civil servant into public controversy and by making public a report that had been made by a civil servant in confidence.

Mr. Sharp is considered by his colleagues as one of Canada's top civil servants. He has worked out a number of tariff, trade and wheat agreements for Canada and figured largely in the development of a trade agreement with Russia in 1955. It was signed Feb. 29, 1956.

Before joining the trade department he was director of the finance department's economic policy division. During the war he was liaison officer between the finance minister and the wartime prices and trade board.

He had been an executive director of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and director of the Commodity Prices Stabilization Corporation. In discussions leading up to Newfoundland's entry into Confederation in 1949 he was chairman of a sub-committee on finance and economic policy.

JOHN D. SAYS Reasonable Stabilization Achieved

HAMILTON, Bermuda (BUP)—Prime Minister and Mrs. Diefenbaker, vacationing here after the rigors of the election campaign, attended Easter services Sunday morning in Wesley Methodist Church.

Every seat in the church was packed by a large number of Canadian visitors and Bermudians as Rev. S. G. Woolfrey preached on "The Immortal Hope." At the airport, Mr. Diefenbaker told newsmen that he did not feel that Canada was experiencing a recession. He added that "there has been a marked improvement in the last three or four weeks," and that a reasonable stabilization of employment had been achieved.

B.C. Mishaps Killed 161

Accidents killed 161 British Columbians during the first two months of this year.

In its second monthly report, the British Columbia Safety Council totaled up the grim statistics in the hopes of spotlighting the problem by showing the trend and major causes of fatal accidents in the province.

Heaviest toll was taken in traffic accidents which killed 45 persons. The council noted that of these, 20 were pedestrians.

Accidental falls took the lives of another 25 persons, with most of the victims in the 60 and over age group.

Fires and explosion killed 18 persons and accidental poisoning took the lives of another 11. There were 20 deaths caused by accidental drowning.

The reports said Jakarta forces are streaming towards the frontier supported by planes and armored cars. "It must be admitted that the picture is not bright at the moment," a rebel spokesman here commented. But he claimed that the rebellion which started two months ago against President Sukarno's left-wing regime had brought the economy of Java, heavily populated but poorest of Indonesia's 4,000 islands, to the breaking point.

Faced with an all-out attack by government troops, rebels in central Sumatra may have to abandon their "capital" of Bukittinggi and resort to guerrilla warfare from the jungles.

In his Jakarta capital, meanwhile, President Sukarno's government is reported buying jet fighters and bombers from the Communist bloc.

A central government spokesman said the Communist shipments would include an undisclosed amount of Russian MiG jet fighters and Ilyushin bombers. The negotiations were completed with Yugoslavia, Poland, and Czechoslovakia, and have no strings attached, he said, adding that Indonesia would still like to buy arms from the West if given an opportunity.

After the Earthquake

AMONG OTHER THINGS, THE federal election has drastically altered the prospects of the British Columbia Government.

It was foolish, as the election demonstrated, for Premier Bennett to argue that national and provincial politics are in two separate pockets; that the total repudiation of Social Credit last Monday leaves his affairs untouched.

Mr. Bennett campaigned desperately for federal Social Credit candidates, he staked his own prestige on the election, he predicted a gain of seats and the people of British Columbia have given him their answer.

The answer undoubtedly means that British Columbia is disenchanted with Social Credit on both levels, federal and provincial. It is only waiting, we believe, for the chance to find an alternative to the Bennett Government, whose great days have passed. The road ahead leads downward.

Hence the practical question raised in provincial politics by the national earthquake is where the future alternative to the Bennett Government can be found.

Mr. Strachan, the respected leader of the CCF, says hopefully that he will win the provincial election of 1960 or 1961. His reasoning is difficult to understand.

True enough, his party increased its popular vote last Monday in British Columbia while Social Credit and the Liberal Party lost. But the gain in the Conservative vote was heavy and its success in 18 constituencies overwhelming.

There was no comfort in this test for anyone but the Conservative Party.

Admittedly, federal and provincial votes are not always identical or even close but the recent expression of the voters' will in British Columbia was devastating to the provincial Social Credit, CCF and Liberal Parties alike.

A difference between the three parties can be noted, however. The CCF has ceased to be a significant force and Social Credit is dead in national affairs. But the Liberal Party, though at the lowest ebb in its history, still exists, controls the opposition in Ottawa and is the only future alternative to the Diefenbaker Government. Through the nation at large the two-party system has been restored.

In due time, perhaps at the next provincial election, the two-party system will re-appear in British Columbia, but only, of course, if the two old parties are re-built provincially.

The Conservative Party is losing no time in re-building itself with the aid and prestige of its victorious federal managers. It should be a strong threat to Mr. Bennett a couple of years from now, and Mr. Deane Finlayson is moving promptly towards this objective.

The Liberal Party should begin its reconstruction without delay for both provincial and national reasons.

There can be no doubt, in retrospect, that the Liberal Party nationally began to fall with the disintegration of its provincial organs.

Among their numerous mistakes the Liberal leaders in Ottawa disregarded these signs of decay, the collapse of one Liberal government in the provinces after another. They cannot hope to recover nationally until they have revived their party provincially.

This may take a long time, for it would be another fatal mistake to imagine that the Conservative sweep is a temporary event. Several terms of Conservative Government at Ottawa may well lie ahead. At any rate, that possibility cannot be disregarded.

If it is to profit by the Social Credit slump, federally and provincially, the Liberal Party must immediately begin to reconsider its leadership in British Columbia, repair its organization, nominate its candidates for the next Legislature and go to work.

A Success in Every Way

THE SUCCESS OF THE RIPPLE Rock blast, an engineering feat without precedent, has been duly recorded. The pinnacles of rock which thrust up to within a few feet of the surface of Seymour Narrows have been shattered and a navigational hazard which has claimed lives and injured shipping for close to a century has been removed, with "clear water" estimated at 47 feet or more.

The water there is still treacherous. The tide still races through. But the obstacle which caused the greatest danger has gone.

This is an outstanding achievement for the engineers and workmen who carried out the project. It is all the more noteworthy because secondary damage was limited to a negligible minimum.

And through the spectacular blast, the final sentence has been written to the discredited argument over the use of the underwater rocks as footings for a bridge to the mainland.

The tremendous explosion passes now into the record—a record particularly vivid for millions of people who through television watched the event as closely as if they had been on the scene.

The work of the CBC crews, both in the documentary film made during the tunnelling and preparation for the blast, and the actual live telecast, left nothing to be desired.

If there are awards for such TV presentations, then the CBC deserves first prize for the excellence of its coverage on Saturday morning.

Cold Shoulders—Fevered Brows

THERE WILL BE NO PARTICULAR quarrel with the decision of the Eisenhower Administration that Geneva would be a better place than Washington to hold the proposed summit conference if and when it takes place. But there has certainly been criticism of the footling explanation advanced for this decision.

The explanation is that, having the conference in the United States would involve the presence of Mr. Khrushchev, and that the presence of this infuriating Russian leader would constitute a serious threat to the security of the nation.

The suggestion is that Mr. Khrushchev would top even the popularity efforts of the new Soviet ambassador to the U.S., Mr. Menshikov, whose campaign of smiles, quips and hand-shaking is winning a certain recognition that Russians are human beings after all.

The proposition that the impact of Mr. Khrushchev would sweep away all American doubts about Russia and Russian communism is insulting to the intelligence of Americans and neglectful of history. Surely the American public, responsive to publicity-inspired popularity though it may be, would not abandon all its anti-Marxist defences at the drop of a conversational pleasantries.

And surely the visit of Messrs. Bulganin and Khrushchev to Britain a couple of years ago demonstrated that hosts and hostesses can be critical of their guests. The "B and K" tour of Britain was in no sense a triumph; in fact it was marked by several very clear indications of adverse British opinion. Does Washington say that Americans would be no less discriminating?

Not Perfect Enough for Anarchy

MR. ALEC C. BEASLEY OF WINFIELD, a tiny South Okanagan hamlet, lit his small candle in a naughty world last week.

Mr. Beasley is an angry man—angry at the apathy with which Canadians face the world's lawlessness. He expressed his view, at considerable expense, in a quarter-page advertisement in a Vancouver newspaper urging Canadians to spoil their ballots when they went to the polls last Monday.

By spoiling their ballots they would show their discontent. The result would reflect their protest. All parties would be disciplined.

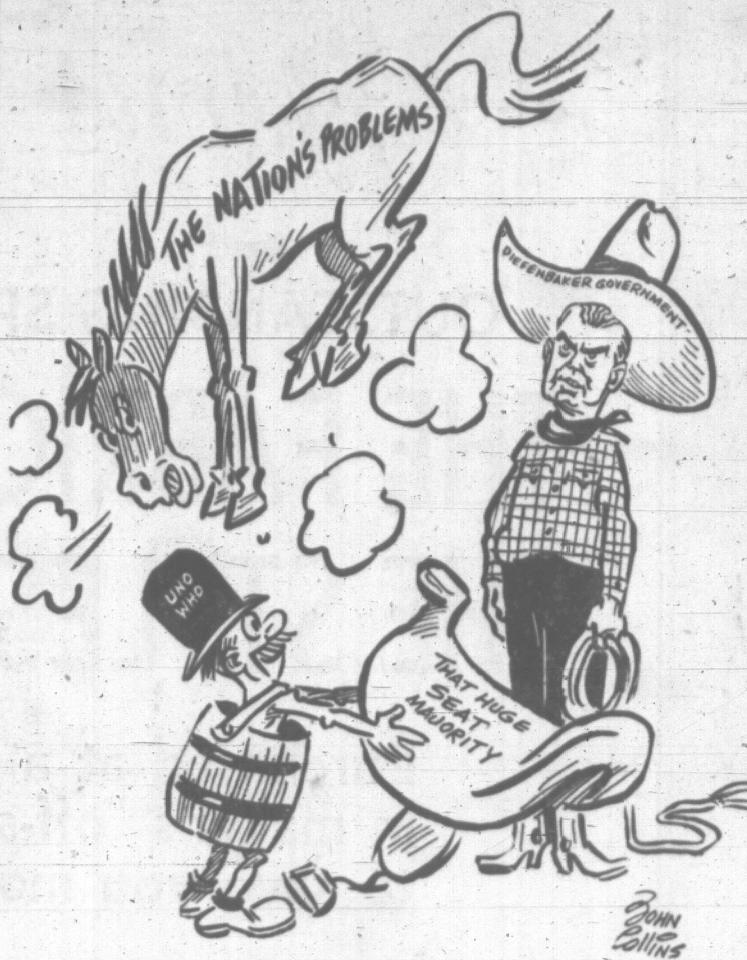

But Mr. Beasley neglected to point out to whom the protest would be made. If no one were elected, there would be no government to receive this show of indignation. There would be no representative to carry this cry against outrage to the rest of the world. There would be anarchy, with no accepted authority.

In a perfect society anarchy would be the ideal—with each individual going about his business without interference to his neighbors or by any government. But society has somehow failed, as yet, to reach perfection.

Still, Mr. Beasley has made his protest. More people than ever before marked ballots and did not spoil them. And the advertising department of a Vancouver newspaper is no doubt grateful to Mr. Beasley for his contribution to its revenue.

Beauty and the Beast

TO last week's news that so robust a character as the British actor, Peter Ustinov, is now carrying a handbag—and liking it—is added information regarding the encroachment of other feminizing influences on the male world. To wit: Business executives are going in for beautifying treatments.

But they're kicking like billy-o about the cost.

It seems that businessmen in the higher brackets are finding it an economic necessity to watch their personal appearance. It used to be enough to be clean, neat, and properly dressed. But that's all changed. Now you have to be beautiful. And that doesn't mean merely a shave, haircut and manicure. The latest requirement is the real thing.

Tobin

Stiff Competition

The sagging jaw, the shallow complexion, the misplaced tooth or the flabby waistline are now not merely physical handicaps, they're economic hazards. They may lose you a sale; the customer may prefer your handsome competitor. And why is he handsome? Merely because he has availed himself of the aids to beauty that are now concocted for men.

The catch, however, is the cost. But if you consider it an investment—perhaps even tax deductible as personal repairs or restoration of equipment—the expense might seem more reasonable.

The magazine "Sales Management" lists the "high costs of reconstruction" as follows: Toupee $165; Contact lenses $200; Sandpapering facial blemishes $250; Teeth caps $3,000; Face lift $1,000; Machine for exercise while you rest $200; Lifeguard shorts $1.95; Elevator shoes $24.95. Total $4,841.90.

You might look more beautiful after such a course of treatment, but you would certainly be walking with a limp on the pocketbook side.

Historic Rivalry

The current move toward masculine beautification, of course, is no new thing. At various periods of history the male has outshone the female—or at least offered her some serious competition in coiffure, cosmetics and dress.

The old explanation of our school days—that men had to cut their long curls when the industrial revolution arrived because their locks tended to get caught in the machines—would not necessarily hold true in a push-button age. Will automation herald a return to glamour?

If you think that such an overwhelming change could never occur, just look around you. A year ago would you have wagered any important money that such a large proportion of faces would sport beards at this time?

The enthusiasm with which the beard-growing campaign has caught on argues that similarly large-scale changes could take place in other ways, once a few adventurers had led the way.

Too effeminate, you say? There's a big difference between a manly show of beards and—as by modern standards—unmanly show of waved tresses?

Perhaps, but have you noticed the trend in teen-age hair fashions? Have you noticed husky young bucks—no doubt football or basketball stars—primping and patting their forelocks in public to achieve just that state of curly delight that is the current mode?

A few years ago no lad would have dared to attempt such manipulations, even in private. The merest hint that he was so addicted would have been enough to drive him out of the schoolyard in full flight before the jeers of his close-cropped classmates.

Well, these teen-agers will soon be adults. If they can now wear frizzed pompadours that outlive the hairdos of their sisters and girl friends, would they hesitate at the next step in hirsute or sartorial splendor?

The advertisement in "Sales Management" may not have been kidding. It may merely have represented on the top level of society, at top level prices, a process that already is under way at the teen-age level. If so, Heaven help us.

Seasonal Change

For if such obsession with appearance should invade the male world as it has captured the female, it will not be merely a matter of one fashion change. As in all such human phenomena where extremism is rampant, there will be a continual alteration and progression as efforts are made to outdo the existing style.

Thus we shall have annual fashions in men's hair, men's clothes, men's shoes, to a degree matched only by similar upheavals in women's domain.

A single news paragraph from Paris or London will wipe out a man's wardrobe completely, damning it as "last season's." Even his head of hair will be voted out of date at least once a year, with a resulting rush to the beauty shops to restore social acceptability.

It will be a fate worse than bankruptcy, and only one jump ahead of it.

REAL WEALTH

A society is the richer for producing people of varied individuality, with varied patterns of living and thinking; but it is the poorer if it produces classes so diverse in experience or ethic that they cannot communicate or work together.

Chance to Fulfil Promises

According to the morning paper the reason for the return of the Conservative government was that Canadians were determined to end the long-time dominance of the Liberal rule (and note it was 22 years of progress).

This is not so. The only reason was that the voters thought it only right to give the government the chance to fulfil the promises it made in the nine months it was in office.

The Conservatives could have carried these through as they were not opposed, but instead Mr. Diefenbaker put the country to the expense of an election. Mr. Pearson had only been elected Liberal leader a few days before parliament was dissolved and so had no time to prepare for an election.

Mr. Diefenbaker knew this and he also knew the respect and admiration Canadians felt toward Mr. Pearson and the far-reaching plan he put forward, so it was to his advantage to call the election. Now he has the chance to do what he should have done long ago.

Mr. Pearson is still the most dominant figure in Canada today in spite of his defeat at this time.

Keep the CBC

May I protest mildly against the widespread notion that the CBC should be liquidated.

True, we are said to live in an insane world and the over-all programming of the network is fairly sane. On the other hand statistics show that on this continent only one person out of ten is more or less mad. Granted that the percentage is increasing the sane are still in the majority.

Moreover, it seems to me, that the network is picking up more and more murder and mayhem drama from our southern neighbors and substituting the noises and rhythms of the jungle for music. Let us give the CBC time to evolve.

By the time psychiatrists have to integrate the few who are sane into the majority, the madmen, the network will have caught up and proved itself up to date.

Inspired Confidence

The result of the federal elections, in my view, proves that the citizens of Canada for the most part think as individuals, use their own minds and vote accordingly.

In June many Liberals were shocked at the government's stand at the Suez crisis and there was the floating vote which, too, had a share in gaining that slim majority by the Conservatives. But this election's results, as I see it, was brought about by the following:

The Conservatives during their short time in office had inspired confidence in people of all callings in life and circumstances and so many in consequence were anxious that they should not only win again but with a working majority.

Another factor is significant. Many union workers having a growing distrust in the CCF because that party gives warm support to unwarranted union demands and also strikes, while voicing horror at the unemployment situation for which they blame the governments. Now more and more union members realize the danger to their—and future available—jobs from these demands, and dread all a strike means for them. So thanks to the secret ballot won for us by our forefathers—they were able to vote Conservative.

In regard to the Social Credit Party, I think voters who support the B.C. and Alberta Social Credit governments sincerely and completely feared the defeat or another stalemate for the Conservatives from splinter votes which could not possibly bring a federal victory to the Social Credit.

Snap Out of It

Relative to Mr. Victor Midgley's statement in the Victoria Daily Times of April 1, 1938, crying "Depression," I would like to quote a story from The Retailer magazine:

"A man lived by the side of the road and sold hot dogs."

He was hard of hearing, so he had no radio.

He had trouble with his eyes, so he had no newspaper.

But he sold good hot dogs.

He put up a sign on the highway, telling how good they were.

He stood by the side of the road and cried: "Buy a hot dog, mister."

And people bought.

He increased his meat and bun orders and he bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade.

He got his son home from college to help him.

But then something happened.

His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio? There's a big depression on. The international situation is terrible and the domestic situation is even worse."

Whereupon the father thought, "Well, my son has been to college. He listens to the radio and he reads the papers, so he ought to know."

So, the father cut down on the bun order, took down his advertising signs, and no longer bothered to stand on the highway to sell hot dogs.

His hot-dog sales fell almost overnight.

"You were right, son," the father said to the boy.

"We are certainly in the middle of a great depression!"

Remember—this is a big year, in a big country with a big future. Let's snap out of it!

Europe Revisited

TRAVELLING about in Europe, as I have been doing, it has, of course, been only too obvious that there is a great decline in American influence. The immediate cause of it is, no doubt, the debility of the President's role, in world affairs, and its accompaniment—perhaps its inevitable accompaniment—the negativism of Secretary Dulles.

But what I learned in Scandinavia, in Poland, in Germany, in Britain, and France persuaded me that the compelling cause of the decline of our influence is that the American view of the main European issues is becoming out of date, is being bypassed by events, and that when we talk about Europe, and Germany, and the captive states and Russia, we sound rather like old codgers talking about the past.

I became most aware of this as I began to realize how very different is the official American view of Germany from what one finds virtually everywhere in Europe.

We have been taking it for granted that the hope of the future in Europe turns on the reunification and revival of Germany. The truth, as I found it, was that the World War is not forgotten, indeed that the memory of it is reviving, and that to understand the European situation as a whole it is necessary to take account of this growing fear of German domination.

Economic Power

The spectacle of West Germany's economic recovery plus the growing knowledge that there is also a remarkable recovery in East Germany have revived the remembrance of the war and played a very big part in affairs.

I had not realized this before I went abroad this time. Always until then I had believed that Germany, even if reunited, was too small to be a world power again. What I had failed to realize is that all things are relative, and that relative to the rest of Europe—excluding the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R.—a reunited Germany would now be the foremost power.

In London as in Warsaw, and in the neutralist countries as well, there is a deep anxiety that this powerful reunited Germany would become the ally of either the U.S.A. or the U.S.S.R., of that it would hold the balance of power between them.

The practical effect of this is that it is hard to find anyone who does not want to put off as long as possible the reunion of the two Germanies. This works out in a curious way.

Those who are affiliated with the West cling publicly and officially to the Dulles-Adenauer formula of free elections to unify Germany. This is not because they believe in the formula but because they know that Germany cannot be unified under that formula.

Those who are affiliated with the East support the Russians in German affairs, counting on the Russians to protect them against a reunited Germany.

There is no doubt at all, it seems to me, that Poland, for example, longs for the withdrawal of the Red Army and yet, out of fear of Germany, hopes that until there is some other kind of settlement of the German question, the Russians will stay in East Germany.

It is in West Germany that the official American-German policy seems particularly antiquated.

Whatever their neighbors may fear from them, the great mass of the West Germans are not dreaming of domination by a united Germany. They are worrying about a united Germany.

Some are worrying because they fear a revival of German nationalism, many more because a united Germany would probably be predominantly Socialist, others because it would be extremely difficult to integrate the collectivist economy of Eastern Germany and the capitalist economy of Western Germany.

Fading Role

For reasons like these, the Adenauer-Dulles formula has a fading role among the Germans. Few expect the formula to work, and few really want it to work. What we are going to see, it seems to me, is—as unfortunately only the Russians have had the wit to suggest—"negotiations between the two German governments."

As a matter of fact there is already negotiation about the currency and about trade, all of it nominally at a technical rather than at a political level. These negotiations will almost certainly broaden greatly into some sort of political arrangement which might one day take the form of a dual state.

The West Germans will not break with the Western powers and the East Germans will not break with the Soviet Union. They will seek to obtain the practical advantages of reunion without the serious political and psychological disadvantages.

This process in the two Germanies will, I am convinced, promote and will be accompanied by a thinning out of the military forces in Germany and in Central Europe.

There is every reason to believe that the future of Central Europe lies with the principle of disengagement. But the application of the principle will be gradual, and the full application of it may not come for a great many more years than anyone can calculate.

Great Momentum

These developments will, I believe, have acquired great momentum in about three years. I say three years because, at the end of that time Adenauer is not likely to be in power, and there will be new governments in Britain, France and the United States.

Put another way, the post-war governments will have been replaced and with them the post-war policies which are now rapidly becoming antiquated.

The decline of American influence in Europe will, I believe, continue as long as our fundamental conception of the future in the two Germanies and in East Europe consists of the illusions and stereotypes which the Eisenhower administration inherited from the Truman administration. For they belong to an era when the balance of power and the technology of war and of diplomacy were quite different from what they are today.

The Bridge

IT'S after midnight, and I am writing on my knee in bed. Outside the full moon is shining on the fields, and all the frogs are singing. To me, this is home. But, at the moment, neither fields nor frogs seem as real and familiar as a certain stretch of the River Kwa, where I spent the greater part of this evening.

It's a long time since I have been so gripped by any film. (I'm not counting the "Bolshoi Ballet" because the two films are too disparate for comparison. In fact, I'll cheerfully put my head on the chopping block and admit that if I had to choose between a film like "The Bridge on the River Kwai" and a stage play of the same story, I'd choose the film every time.

These were no celluloid figures, no shadows of the real thing. To me, they were quite the equal of the theatre's living flesh and blood.

Nor was this "passive entertainment." I was participating in the suspense, the horror, the nobility, and the tragedy every minute of the time.

Because I'm rather squeamish about horrors on the screen, there were one or two moments when I felt like getting up and being sick in the aisle. For there was violence aplenty—the knife in the belly, the rattle of machine-gun fire, the sharp staccato shot, the grunt and slump of death—but, somehow, it was not violence for the sake of violence. It was not just provided for the more brutish section of the audience. Its necessity was an integral part of the story, and the emotion that it aroused was pity for the folly of it.

The sickening horror of the unfolding plot was so great that I was thankful for the moments of laughter that relieved the tension just as surely as the drunken porter scene in "Macbeth" comes as exquisite relief after the horror of Duncan's murder.

I found, too, that it was not a film that brought on the pricking of easy tears. The pity was too deep for that. Moreover, the appeal was largely to the mind.

I know that I came home thinking seriously about courage and codes of honor, about conflicting ideas, about the nature of Man himself.

So far as I can recall, there was not one moment of preachy propaganda, but the message of the film was so plain that I don't see how anyone could miss it.

It was as clear an indictment of war, with all its waste and folly, as anything I've ever seen.

It'll be many years before I forget this film. Some of the shots, I'm certain, will be with me to the grave.

Indeed, I intend to go to it again. Knowing the plot as I do now, I'll be better able to appreciate the craftsmanship. I'll notice details that I missed the first time round.

This is the cinema at its best. And I am thankful that I didn't miss this beautiful, tragic film.

LONDON LETTER

Pinocchio Without Tears

LONDON — At random . . . Posh new grandstand at Lord's Cricket Ground will be ready for the opening of the season. A double-decker, it seats 3,000 and has two bar-restaurants, one of them for the sole use of reporters.

It replaces the old A Stand, next to the pavilion, which used to be called the Cowshed, because it looked like one. The new one will be called the Warner Stand, after grand old man of cricket Sir Pelham (Phum) Warner, who is very happy about it, because rarely is a grandstand named for a cricketer.

Children's Books: If you're interested in these because you're a teacher or you just happen to be a parent, here are two things you might like to know.

First, Shirley Golden is having a big success of rewriting of children's classics — minus the horror. Her feeling is that many a youngster is terrified by the gory goings-on in many a fairy tale.

Two of her best-sellers are the toned-down retelling of Pinocchio and Stories From Hans Andersen. Also a big hit: a children's version of the Arabian Nights.

And secondly, the Sunday Times has put a lot of time and effort into selecting and describing The 100 Best Books for Children. Libraries and schools besieged the paper for reprints, so it has been brought out as a booklet. Price 1s 10d from 196 Gray's Inn Road, London, W.C1.

Things I didn't know about women's sleepwear: Only one in six English women wear pyjamas and you never see a green nightdress in the shops—women never want to buy them that color.

Quote from the Belgian Ambassador: "The weather in England is much like that in Belgium. For 300 days it rains—and the rest is bad weather."

Changing face of England: Popularity of the coffee shops has caused Zetia's (one of the biggest, with Lyons and the ABC, chains of tearooms in the country) to close down all but one of two of their tearooms.

Charles Laughton, back in England from the U.S. looking for a play to do, gives as his reason: "American playwrighting stopped with Tennessee Williams."

TRADE WITH RED CHINA

U.S. Interests Voice Interest in Business

NEW YORK (BUP) — Canada's rising interest in trade with Red China at last is finding a few champions in the United States.

They are few and far between. The general position of business leaders as well as leaders of both American political parties is that trade with Red China gives aid and comfort to a potential and actual enemy of the west. Also that Russia has the really valuable part of Red China's trade sewed up and that it's potential value is not worth the effort.

It is on these grounds that American businessmen and politicians justify the government in preventing American subsidiary companies in Canada and all other foreign lands from trading with Red China.

The American-controlled auto companies in Britain, Germany and elsewhere have been discouraged from selling to Red China just as Ford of Canada was.

The fact that in four years, Britain's exports to Red China have risen to only $33-million is often cited in the U.S. as proof that the potential of a big trade-between Red China, and the west simply does not exist.

Yet some Britons and Canadians who have been to Red China persist in believing there is a big potential trade there for the West.

WOULD END BLOCKADE

They have been joined by an important American voice—that of the influential New York Journal of Commerce. The Journal of Commerce has opposed the American blockade of non-strategic goods for Red China all along. Now the paper has come out for an end of the blockade and a determined American effort to capture a big share of the Red China market.

The paper's publisher, Eric Ridder, and its editor, Dr. H. E. Luedicke, have just returned from Moscow, where they interviewed Nikita Khrushchev. The Soviet boss told them he regards free international trade as the one sure way to end the cold war.

Dr. Luedicke said this means that the western world and especially the U.S. and Canada are facing a huge threat of Soviet trade competition starting right now—and that it will come in five years or less.

Said Dr. Luedicke: "The two chief prizes in this match will be China and India—two markets with a trade potential that staggers the imagination."

Dr. Luedicke said he does not believe Russia has the Chinese market sewed up for all time. "There is enough potential trade in China for Russia and for us and others besides us," he said.

"The notion that the Chinese potential is small is based on the wrong idea that China is not going to develop its consumptive power steadily and rapidly. They are going to develop."

Also Dr. Luedicke said he did not regard Britain's trade with Red China as small. "It is a nice little trade, and it will grow."

He said that he is concerned by the way West Germany is getting ahead of North America in the Chinese market.

OTTAWA IN THE RED

February Financing Operated at Deficit

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government's monthly financial operations during February were in the red for the first time since April, 1957, but over the year a surplus remained, although less than half the previous year's.

A February deficit of $70,400,000 was shown in the regular monthly financial statement issued Thursday night by Finance Minister Fleming. That compared to a surplus for the previous February of $7,800,000. The last previous deficit, in April, 1957—first month of the fiscal year in question—amounted to $48,000,000.

During the first 11 months of the fiscal year ended March 31, the government operated in the black, but the surplus of $251,400,000 was down sharply from the $544,100,000 shown in the corresponding period of the previous year.

Mr. Fleming has forecast an eventual surplus for the year of $80,000,000.

Revenues in February were $388,600,000 while expenditures were $409,000,000. For February, 1957, revenues totalled $350,300,000 and expenditures $342,500,000.

In the 11-month period, revenues were $4,551,700,000, up $38,500,000 from a year previous, and expenditures, $4,300,300,000.

INCOME TAX UP

Personal income tax collections in February were $105,900,000 compared to $101,700,000 a year earlier, and $1,411,600,000 for the 11-month period, compared to $1,295,100,000.

Corporation income tax amounted to $81,200,000 in February compared to $89,500,000 a year earlier and $1,115,500,000 for the 11-month period compared to $1,125,200,000.

Defence spending declined in February to $134,200,000 from $144,100,000 and in the 11 months to $1,454,100,000 from $1,517,600,000. Other departments were higher, with public works at $17,000,000 compared to $13,200,000 for February and $164,800,000 compared to $132,800,000 for the 11 months.

The old age pension fund, not included in federal budgetary operations, had a February deficit of $18,700,000 and an 11-month deficit of $91,900,000 compared to $60,000 and $15,900,000 respectively.

Rebels on Run Says Cuban Army; Leader Isolated

HAVANA (AP) — President Fulgencio Batista's army claimed today to have whipped one big contingent of Fidel Castro's rebels, and that it was pursuing it and another major rebel band in the mountains of eastern Cuba.

The army also claimed it had shot down a two-engine foreign transport plane bringing arms to be dropped to Castro. The announcement said the plane crashed and burned and the crew was killed, but the country where the plane originated and the identities of the crew were not announced.

The general staff said its forces had defeated a large rebel outfit headed by Raul Castro, the rebel chief's brother, which had been operating along the northern coast of Oriente province.

The rebel group was reported scattered, forced back into the Sierra Maestra and "isolated". The communique said seven rebels were killed and more than 30 wounded or captured. Batista's forces earlier claimed more than two dozen rebels killed Sunday in Oriente.

The army said Saturday it had isolated Fidel Castro and another big group of rebels in the mountains, but rebel sources shrugged this off.

BATISTA INTERVIEWED

Batista, visited by reporters at his heavily-guarded farm outside Havana, said the army's strategy will be to reduce the rebel ranks bit by bit.

Although Castro was still at large today the "total war" he was supposed to have begun two days ago still had not materialized.

The army said that while it was pursuing the two main Castrated groups, other troops

CROWD WATCHES LION EAT MAN

PALERMO, Sicily (UP)—A 30-year-old Sicilian laborer was devoured by a seven-year-old African lion Sunday when he climbed into its cage to pet it before a crowd of horrified spectators.

Razor sharp claws slashed Giuliano's throat and chest. Blood spurted across the cage and the lion caught the scent. Giuliano gasped, raised his hands and fell to the floor of the cage helpless.

Firemen used high pressure hoses to drive Barbarus from the body of the Sicilian. But it took them half an hour and Giuliano was half devoured.

French-Tunis Talks Bogged

PARIS (UP)—Anglo-American efforts to settle the French-Tunisian dispute reached virtual stalemate today.

American "good offices" negotiator Robert D. Murphy continued to issue optimistic statements, but his British colleague, Harold Beeley hinted their mission had come to at least "temporary" failure.

The two diplomats returned Sunday from Tunis, where Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba rejected their proposal for neutral supervision of the Algerian-Tunisian border.

They will confer with French Premier Felix Gaillard Wednesday.

"I am encouraged. We continue with the good offices mission," the U.S. deputy undersecretary of state told reporters. Beeley, a British Foreign Office expert on Middle Eastern affairs, appeared somewhat less optimistic.

Eloquent Pro Tops Masters

Weather Ruling
Assists Palmer;
Leonard Fourth

AUGUSTA, Ga. (CP) — Arnold Palmer, a thick-shouldered professional of 28, won the Masters golf tournament Sunday with a dramatic final round and an eloquent argument over an imbedded ball.

He fired a one-over-par 73 to knock out the early leader, young Ken Venturi, and other contenders in a stretch battle which at one stage resembled a rush-hour traffic jam.

Palmer, who captured his first major tournament in 1955 by taking the Canadian Open, posted a 72-hole total of 284, four under par. He highlighted the final round with an eagle three on the 475-yard 13th hole.

The score was barely good enough to nose out Doug Ford, who won the title last year with a whirlwind windup, and Fred Hawkins. They missed birdie putts on the 18th hole and finished in a tie for second place with 285.

LEONARD TIED FOR 4TH
Venturi, who set the pace in the first two rounds, three-putted three straight holes on the back nine for 72 and a 286 total. It gave him a fourth-place tie with Stan Leonard of Vancouver.

Al Balding of Toronto, only other Canadian to last the four rounds at the Augusta national course, had a 296.

Leonard clipped a stroke off par with his final round of 71. His total: 72-70-73-71. Balding had 73-72-71-78.

BURIED BALL DEBATE
The controversy over the buried ball started on the short No. 12 hole. Palmer's tee shot thudded into a bank between the green and an elevated trap in the rear.

Palmer argued that under the wet-weather rule in effect he was entitled to lift the ball. Officials at the scene said he would have to play the ball from its imbedded position.

Palmer hacked it out, chipped to the green and two-putted for a five on the par-three hole. But he continued to insist he was entitled to a free drop. Officials permitted him to play a provisional ball. He chipped that one close to the pin and sank the putt for a "three."

Not until Palmer and his playing partner, Venturi, were on the 15th fairway did Allen Edwards, chairman of the rules committee, give them the official decision: A par three instead of a two-over-par five. The two strokes made the difference.

The wet-weather rule had been authorized by the United States Golf Association and was put in force Sunday. The 6,980-yard course, with its par of 36-36-72, was wet and soggy.

At the close of the event, the Masters committee announced a bonus of 125 per cent in prize money, bringing the total pool to $60,050, highest in the tournament's 22-year history.

This sent Palmer's top money to $11,250 from $4,000. All other pros who accepted invitations, even if they didn't play or dropped out, received $350. Leonard picked up $1,968.75. Balding got $900.

First United Loses Bid for Island Title
First United bantam boys basketball team lost their bid for the Island championship to Alberni Junior High School, in Alberni, Saturday night.

The score was 47-46, with Alberni making a great third-quarter rally after trailing the Victoria team through the earlier stages of the game.

Winning 34-35 in the first game of the two-game total-point series last weekend in Victoria, Alberni won the crown by a 20-point margin.

As Upper and Lower Island champions, both teams will

Willingdon Cup Aces Hit Hard In Vancouver
VANCOUVER (CP) — Three Willingdon Cup players — Bob Kidd, Doug Bajus and Bert Tiehurst — were eliminated Sunday in the second round of the Vancouver City Match Play Open golf tournament at Vancouver's University course.

Bajus, of Point Grey course, fell before the expert play of Langara assistant professional Lyle Crawford, 4 and 3. Kidd, Marine Drive amateur, went down 3 and 2 to Fred Wood, Shaughnessy pro.

One of the big surprises of the day came when Joe Jeroski of Glen Oaks defeated Fraser, view's Tiehurst 3 and 2. Jeroski was five up after 12 holes.

No, It's Not the Grip

We-can-still-learn attitude was adopted by veterans Vic Painter (left) and Art Donaldson (centre) on Sunday despite first-round victories in Times' Vancouver Island Match Play Open golf championships. Far from happy with their putting, the two veterans moved to putting green where they checked on Bill Wakeham's methods. The Canadian junior champion was deadly on the greens while scoring impressive 4-and-3 win over Bob Johnstone of Gorge Vale Golf Club. (Times photo by Robin Clarke)

Broodies, Tils Set For Soccer Final

Tilliums and Broodies Bakery may settle the Victoria and District Football League crown at Royal Athletic Park Wednesday evening.

Broodies, who clipped Tilliums, 4-3, in a McGavin Cup fixture at Central Park Sunday, won the second-half league title while the Tils set the pace in the opening half.

League officials originally scheduled the final match for April 18, but since several players may be performing with Nanaimo's Pacific Coast Soccer League entry the following day, hope to move the game ahead. A definite decision is expected today.

Officials also announced that a league all-star club will tackle the Dufferin Hotel squad of Vancouver in an exhibition tussle at Athletic Park Saturday.

In a second match played Sunday, Canadian Scottish romped to a 7-0 victory over Ladysmith.

PENALTY KICK
Bill Ackinlose rapped in five goals and Taffy Jones and Roy Jackson each counted one for the Scots.

Leroy Bond scored three goals for Broodies at Central Park, but Willie McMillan proved the winning margin when he caromed a penalty kick off the crossbar and into the net.

Tim Walker, George Wright and Stan Wiseman each scored once for Tilliums.

WHEATON TRIES TONIGHT

A selection committee is to decide the makeup of a 12-member team after the final event on the 17-event program is run off tonight. More than 70 swimmers and divers from four provinces are competing.

Sally Holland, only Victoria entrant in the women's events, became ill Saturday and was unable to compete.

Bruce Warburton was third in his heat in the 100-yard free-style at 55.4 and fourth in his 220-yard free-style at 2:29.5. He failed to qualify for either final. The only other Victoria entry, Bob Wheaton, will race tonight. A Canadian record holder, Wheaton is "placing all his eggs in one basket" in a bid for a Games berth by entering only one event, his specialty—the 100-yard backstroke.

Miss Barber easily won the backstroke final with a time of 1:04.9 over Margaret Iwasaki, of Vancouver, and Toronto's Lynn Scott. In the qualifying heat, she posted 1:04.4, beating her recognized mark of 1:05.9.

From Miss Priestley's record, Miss Barber clipped 1.5 seconds with a 5:18.7 clocking.

The Montreal girl also bettered her own mark in placing second and so did the third-place finisher, Susan Sangster, of Vancouver, another 17-year-old.

George Park, 25, Hamilton, and Cameron Grout, 18, a Montreal student, also set new Canadian records Saturday, along with Peter Bell, 23, of London, Ont.

John Was a Merry Man With Hot Putter in Hand

Defending Champ Sidelined
By Gorge Vale Clubmate

By ERNIE FEDORUK

There's the old locker-room saying that suggests "a game of golf is never won, but always lost!" But Joe Briggs, knocked out of the Times Vancouver Island Match Play Open championships by a hot putter in the hands of a clubmate, couldn't see it that way Sunday.

The defending Open champion, beaten 7 and 6 in the opening round at wind-swept Oak Bay, paid his conqueror full dues. The victor was 25-year-old John Merriman, of Gorge Vale, whose startling putts helped fashion the major upset in the first round of the big Island tournament.

Three other former champions, including medalist Laurie Kerr, moved into the round of 16 along with the three professionals in the field.

The ex-champs are all from Colwood. They are Kerr, who defeated Cowichan's Ivan Aven 5 and 4; Bill McColl, who beat Uplands' Al Reside by a similar margin; and Ted Colgate, who had to go to the 18th before sending Bruce Hopkins of Victoria to the sidelines, 2 up.

Colwood's Bill Court led the pro field into the second round, which will be played on his course next Sunday. The man with the 30-inch driver, perhaps the longest on the coast, left it up to his putter to knock off youthful Mike Kolb of Gorge Vale.

Court dropped in a 25-footer for a birdie four on the 12th and then did the same thing on the next hole, a par three job. That beat Kolb 6 and 5.

But as far as putting went, the day belonged to Merriman. He dropped a 12-footer on the first to serve notice of things to come. He three-putted after the second but was dynamite after that.

Merriman, whose biggest golf victory to date has been the West Coast championship at Port Alberni, rapped in a six-footer for a birdie on the third.

As a Rule, Joe Likes Oak Bay
"And it may seem strange," Merriman added, "but I was quite worried about the match on my way to the course in the morning because Joe usually turns in a good round at Oak Bay."

"The wind and the greens seem to bother a lot of golfers, but I don't mind Oak Bay... my jinx course is Uplands. I always get beat there. I made it this year, however, so maybe my luck has changed."

But, as Briggs undoubtedly asks himself today, who needs luck when he can putt like Merriman?

While Court defeated Kolb in handy fashion, the two other pros—both in the bottom half of the draw with the Colwood shotsmith—had more difficult outings.

Laurie Carroll, assistant pro at Oak Bay, had to come up with a birdie three on the 18th to beat Don Gard, an up-island threat who plays out of Cowichan Club. With Gard and Aven both on the sidelines, the race for The Daily Times Trophy is strictly an all-Victoria show now.

Eilers Capture Ninth Straight
SASKATOON (CP)—The 17-point performance of Shirley Topley Sunday paced Vancouver Eilers to a 42-38 victory over Calgary Maxwells and their ninth consecutive Canadian senior women's basketball championship.

The sudden-death final to the round-robin tournament was forced Saturday night when Calgary and Vancouver finished the regular four games with three wins and one loss each.

The tie resulted when Calgary defeated Winnipeg Oracles 55-37 and Vancouver edged Saskatoon Aces 38-36.

Marg Whitehead, Irene Mercer and Zoe Robinson added six points apiece for Eilers.

Winnipeg won the grand aggregate race with an overall total of 52 points, three more than Vancouver. Regina was third with 46 and Saskatoon fourth with 45.

Saskatoon, paced by Mary Doherty's 297 pins, defeated Winnipeg 1,208 to 1,112 in the special rolloff for the women's team championship. The teams finished the regular eight-game round with an identical total of 9,398 pins—the first time in the history of the championships that a tie had resulted in team competition.

Vancouver's quintet of Frank Scarfe, Gordon McQueen, Hank Seabloom, George Newton and Dave Bisset established an eight-game record total of 10,395 pins in winning the men's team title. The total was 135 more than the previous mark set by Winnipeg bowlers in 1955.

The men's singles went to Johnny Aura, of Kamloops, whose eight-game total of 2,197 nipped Al Rice, of Edmonton, who counted 2,149. Kamloops also came second in the men's team competition.

Ollie Hynduk, of Winnipeg.

Celtics Deadlock Pro Hoop Series
ST. LOUIS (AP)—Boston Celtics, without big Bill Russell, choked off the St. Louis Hawks with clever slow-down tactics and great defensive play for a 109-98 victory Saturday night, which evened the world series of pro basketball at two games each.

Bob Cousy led the defending National Basketball Association champions with 24 points, 16 of them in the second quarter when he played most of the time in the pivot.

Blues Can Blame Boston's Shuffle
BOSTON (AP)—Jerry Toppazzini, who wasn't even supposed to appear in the playoffs, Fleming Mackell and Don McKenney have helped catapult the hustling Boston Bruins into the Stanley Cup hockey final against heavily favored Montreal.

The best-of-seven championship series opens in Montreal Tuesday night as a result of Boston's overwhelming 8-2 triumph over New York Saturday that wrapped up their semifinal set, four games to two.

Toppazzini got three goals in Saturday night's game and Mackell two, while Norm Johnson, Doug Mohns and Larry Regan got the others, with McKenney contributing with assists to five of the total.

The Ranger scorers were Harry Howell and Andy Bathgate.

Bruins coach Milt Schmidt put the Mackell-Toppazzini-McKenney line together Feb. 23 in a major reshuffling move and the results have been little short of incredible. In the remaining 13 contests in the regular National Hockey League season the Bruins won eight, tied three and lost only twice.

Toppazzini missed four of those 12 games because of an eye injury which at first was believed serious enough to sideline him until next season. But Tupper came back for five goals, McKenney added seven in the stretch and Mackell six—18 in all.

In the six playoff starts against the Rangers, the three—some accounted for 17 of the 28 goals, 19 of the 46 assists, 36 of the 74 points. Toppazzini had eight goals.

Boston Gardens was rocking with 13,909 fans Saturday night when McKenney got his five assists, to tie a single-game playoff record already shared by Toe Blake and Bert Olmstead.

The Canadiens are considered by many as Montreal's most powerful unit ever, despite a long series of injuries. But the Bruins are counting on their full-head-of-steam-to-spring-a-surprise.

"If the team continues to hustle, I see no reason in the world why they can't knock off Montreal despite its fine record," Schmidt said.

Minor Boot Loop Gets Big Boost

Victoria's minor soccer program is assured of a flying start on its activities next season, when it will expand to provide playing opportunities for more than 500 youngsters.

Les Isaacson, president of the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association says that the minor boot circuit will start next season in a "better position than ever."

Officers of the association received a healthy addition from proceeds of the "Juvenile Soccer Day" fiesta which wound up at Royal Athletic Park Saturday.

Isaacson stated that although the total was down about $100 from last year, the tournament, attended by more than 2,000 fans, was the most successful on record and more than $1,000 had been realized.

Eight matches were played Saturday, seven between boys from the 30-team LIJJA and a feature battle for the Tony Ho Memorial Trophy between The Times All-Stars and the Colonist All-Stars, made up of players selected from the city senior loop.

Surprised AKO Coach Ready For Rush Trip to Victoria

Vikings Face Windsor Club In Series' Opener Friday

By IAN SMITH

The dates of the Canadian junior men's basketball final have been set, and, if a surprised Windsor coach can complete the required details in a hurry, Victoria College Vikings and Windsor AKO open their best-of-five series at Victoria High School gym at 8.15 Friday evening.

The friction connected with the series' dates—with the East begging to differ with the West, as always—was eased somewhat

Sunday night by the president of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association.

Joe Polley of Vancouver, the CABA president, issued the dates along with an ultimatum to the East—play or default.

The AKO fraternity team from Windsor surprised everyone, including coach Frank Wansbrough, by capturing the eastern title Saturday with a 68-53 victory over Hamilton Montclair.

HAPPY PROBLEM

Caught unawares by his team's comeback, Wansbrough has the problem, albeit a happy one, of getting AKO's to Victoria by Friday.

Down 56-43 in their two-game, total-point series against Hamilton, Windsor climbed the steep side of the 13-point deficit to win the second game, 68-53, for a narrow 111-109 series triumph.

The confident Hamiltonians were so confident that they had their bags packed and their transportation ready for the expected trip West, Windsor, on the other hand, went into the second game hoping only to put on a good showing.

Under the circumstances, Wansbrough sought to have the Canadian final set back until Monday. Polley, however, ruled against it. The proposed late date would have meant that the Vikings would be playing basketball right in the middle of final exams.

HUGH SATISFIED

Hugh Farquhar, sports director of Victoria College, expressed his approval, stating that "it is the only way." He added, "I am pleased that the CABA was able to strike a balance, for it will give Vikings a chance that they may never receive again."

"We realize that Windsor may be hurried a bit to get out here by Friday, but there was nothing else we could do under the circumstances."

Coach Bill Garner is satisfied with the arrangements, but, at the same time, he would like to know a little more about the team his Vikings are to play.

"I'm handicapped now," he stated. "There's not much you can say when you've never even seen the other team."

But Garner, who has brought his gang through two tough series this year when they won the western Canada title for the second straight time, may know a bit more than he's letting on.

At the start of the current season he singled out Windsor as the team most likely to represent the east. His prediction came true Saturday.

Tom Mailoux paced the Windsor attack Saturday with 22 points. Buckley Parent also served notice of danger as he hit for 16 points, while Bob Hanson scored 13.

RUGBY SILVERWARE BACK ON UBC's SPORTS SHELF

VANCOUVER (CP) — University of British Columbia Thunderbirds regained the World Cup rugby trophy Saturday, defeating University of California Golden Bears, 16-11.

UBC won the four-game, total-point series by 14 points. Thunderbirds defeated California 9-6 Thursday. They lost 8-6 and won 17-9 last month at Berkeley, Calif.

UBC kept the ball in California territory throughout most of Saturday's game. Mike Chambers scored two tries for the Birds and Terry McGavin added two converts. Gronu Gendossi and Doug Muir added the other tries as UBC built up an 11-0 lead in the first half.

Wanderers Blasted In City Rugby Final

Perhaps inspired by Saturday morning's Ripple Rock blast, JBAA's first division team exploded for their biggest score of the season in the afternoon, pummeling Oak Bay Wanderers, 20-6, at Macdonald Park to win the city rugby crown.

It was the second game of a two-game, total-point series for the Barnard Cup. Oak Bay had grabbed a 6-3 lead in the opening tussle.

Gordon Hemmingway and Doug Brown set the spark that ignited the Oarsmen. Hemmingway scored a try and kicked a conversion while Brown booted three penalty goals in the first half.

Other James Bay scorers were Ray Ramsay and Bob Abbott, both with tries. Bob Shipley scored a penalty goal and John Wilkinson notched a try for Wanderers.

James Bay now moves against the Mainland champions for the provincial title.

Victoria Rugby Union officials announced this morning that Reg Lott of the Oarsmen has been named winner of the Rowland Memorial Trophy.

Lott is the fifth winner of the trophy, which is awarded annually to the first division player judged to have best combined ability and sportsmanship during the season. Previous winners were Jim Mills, Frank Gower, Ray Calton and Dick Ellis.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe. Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

What Makes a Neon Sign?
A neon sign is a glass tube connected to an electric current. The air has been removed from the tube and replaced with a little neon gas. When the current is turned off the neon gas in the tube is colorless and invisible. When the current is turned on, the neon gas is agitated, and when neon gas is agitated, either by heat or electric current, it glows with a lovely orange-red color. The glass tube which contains the neon can be twisted and bent. It can be made to write letters and words. Blank spaces are left between letters and words to spell out SODA FOUNTAIN or JOE'S DINER. The orange-red of neon is bright enough to shine at high noon. After sunset, it can be seen for miles. Only neon can cause that cheerful red color. For each gas lights up with a color of its own. Scientists identify a substance from the color it gives off when agitated. The substance to be tested is heated in a clear flame or jolted with electricity. The light it gives off is analyzed with a spectro-scope, an instrument with a prism between two lenses. The spectroscope grades and identifies the colored glow. For example, both lithium and rubidium give off a red glow. Human eyes might be unable to tell which red was which. The spectroscope spreads the red into a rainbow spectrum. The expert sees that one red is composed of one part of the spectrum, the other red from another part of the spectrum. He knows which element he is dealing with. Neon gas gives off its own special red-orange glow when heated or jolted with a jolt of electricity, giving its atoms an extra nudge. The activity takes place in the electrons which circle the nucleus of the neon atom. Electrons circle the nucleus much as planets circle the sun. There are 10 electrons in the neon atom. Two form an inner shell around the nucleus and eight form an outer shell.

Glow Means Energy Loss

In the neon atom, the two electron shells are complete. We call these electron shells energy levels. Electrons are very energetic particles. So much energy is used to keep going in the inner shell, so much to keep going in the outer. This normal state of affairs is upset when the neon atom gets an extra jolt of energy.

ROBERT and JANINE COOPER
"... Hey you."

VICTORIANS HOME FROM PARIS

Movie-Making 'Kind of Bore'

By DINAH KERR

Victorian Robert Cooper, who started in seven or eight "film books," in France thinks movie-making a "kind of a bore."

The Oak Bay High School graduate, now 26, returned from Paris Sunday with his French bride of one month, Janine, 24. He is the son of Mrs. Enid Cooper, 2089 Oak Bay Avenue.

Mr. Cooper left Victoria four years ago to study at the Ecole des Beaux Arts and Sorbonne University, where he received a degree in French literature.

He took bit parts in several French movies to help pay his way through the Sorbonne and had leading roles in the film books, which, he said, are "very like comic books." They are made from movie stills with dialogue written beneath the pictures.

Movie-making, for a bit player at least, is "not very glamorous," he said.

"You hang around for three hours reading books before they shoot 'Hey you — we need a picture.' Then you hang around for another three hours until they need you again."

Although he didn't speak the language before leaving Victoria, Mr. Cooper was often cast as a Frenchman in the movies. "I learned it all over there," he said. "For a long time I had to translate every lecture word by word after class."

While in Paris, Mr. Cooper attracted a deal of attention as an artist. Galleries in Spain and Paris exhibited his abstracts in oils, most painted during a year's sojourn in Spain.

He appeared on one BBC-TV show with a group of other rising young artists in France. Mr. Cooper sold six of his paintings in Paris and brought another 25 home with him. He plans to continue painting here and hopes to make a career of it "eventually."

Major Discovery In Cancer Fight

MADISON, Wis. (UP) — Scientists announced last week they have developed a chemical compound which inhibits the growth of cancer cells by taking advantage of the disease's "suicide complex."

The discovery was rated as a major step in the search for a medical "magic bullet" which can kill cancer cells outright.

The compound, or drug, is being used at the University of Wisconsin Hospital under the direction of Dr. Anthony Currier, professor of surgery.

Scientists said the drug combines fluorine with a body compound used by cancer cells for growth to produce a drug that does the precise opposite—inhibit cancer cell growth.

Its major drawback is toxicity when taken in large doses. But scientists said it can still be used by trained personnel and work is under way to cut down the drug's possible dangerous effects.

The new drug is "5-Fluorouracil." It was developed by Dr. Charles Heidelberger of the McCord Laboratory here and the research staff of Hoffman-La Roche, Inc., of Nutley, N.J. Heidelberger said the new drug "has a definite anti-cancer effect" on certain advanced cases that other treatment can't help.

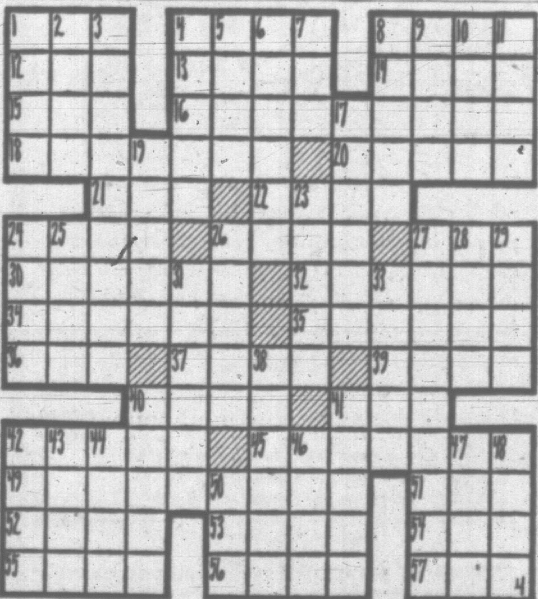

The drug was tailor-made to take advantage of new basic knowledge about the chemical makeup of a cancer cell.

Work at Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia, Yale University and at Wisconsin had showed that cancer cells take the body compound uracil and use it for growth.

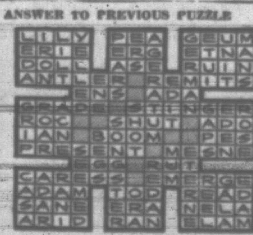

Reds Withdraw 40,000 Troops

TOKYO (AP)—North Korea today said the withdrawal of the first 40,000 Chinese Communist troops was completed Saturday. Pyongyang radio reported three Chinese divisions had crossed the Yalu River border.

The Chinese have said 80,000 troops, or six divisions, would leave North Korea between March 15 and April 30. The most intensive medical search in history is going on for a drug that will cure cancer. Although no "wonder drug" has yet been found there are a number of chemicals that assist in the treatment of cancer.

Killing Raises Old Question: Why Stars Like Gangsters

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The slaying of Johnny Stompanato by Lana Turner's 14-year-old daughter must have most of Hollywood and the world asking:

How can a known underworld figure become the boy friend of a top movie star?

"It's all my fault, it's all my fault," one close friend quoted Lana on her daughter Cheryl's predicament.

Four times married and divorced — and with numerous boy friends in between — the 38-year-old actress saw in hand some Johnny excitement and new kicks.

It may be hard for people unfamiliar with the town to comprehend, but Hollywood can be dull for movie queens.

MAN SHORTAGE

Many a beautiful actress has to sit at home nights for the simple reason that there is a drastic shortage of eligible men. Sexy Barbara Nichols, an unmarried actress who came here from New York, summed it up: "Sure, I'd like to get married, but every interesting man I've met out here is either married or spoken for."

Lana met the 32-year-old Stompanato soon after her rift with Lex Barker, former screen Tarzan who was her latest husband. Beverly Hills Police Chief Clinton Anderson quoted her:

"My first contact with John was a telephone call I received from him about a year ago. I didn't recall ever having met him or having seen him before, but he mentioned mutual friends."

After that he called at intervals for two or three weeks, wanting to come over for a drink or a chat. He kept pestering, and I finally accepted a date with him."

Los Angeles police reports on known underworld figures say that about Stompanato: "He acquaints himself with females of wealth. He courts them, and after he is deeply involved, borrows money and never repays the loan."

Meeting Stompanato was easy for Lana. Getting rid of him was not.

That's what led to the violent arguments climaxed Friday night in the stabbing.

CHEVRONS MARK YPRES

About 70 members of the Red Chevron Association of Vancouver Island will mark the 43rd anniversary of Ypres, when the Germans first used poison gas at a reunion here April 25.

Veterans of the Canadian First Division who went to France in 1914 will hold a (7 p.m.) dinner on that date at 512 Fort.

The first poison gas attack in history was launched at 5 p.m., April 22, 1915.

Tickets are on sale at all veterans' clubs for those eligible to join the association. Additional information can be obtained from C. E. Sherwin at 3-5006.

Lana's Latest Movie Mirrors Real Stabbing Drama at Home

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In her current picture, Peyton Place, a scullery maid, a cheap Cinderella with no hope of a pumpkin.

Lana, who won an academy nomination for the film, now finds herself caught up in a real-life drama in which her own daughter has killed a man. The story has the overtones of classic tragedy, as stark as anything the actress has played in her 20-year film career.

Lana is no stranger to excitement and tragedy. Indeed, she seems to have attracted trouble all her life.

Her own father was the victim of murder. John Turner, a small-time bootlegger who went by the name of Tex Johnson, picked up a wad in a crap game in the basement of a San Francisco newspaper. On the way home, he was slugged and robbed of his winnings. He died of a skull fracture and his killer was never found.

TREATED LIKE SERVANT

That was 1930, when Lana was nine. Her mother boarded her out with friends in Modesto. She bitterly recalled later that she was treated like a servant. "Servant is not the right word," she said. "No servant

START DUE ON SQUARE

Work likely will start this week on a new $33,500 parade square at Work Point Barracks for use of the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Bid for this amount, accepted by Defence Construction (1951) Ltd., came from Farmer Construction Ltd. It was the lowest of six received.

The new square will adjoin the present square, thus providing more parade-room.

Work is expected to be completed within two months.

Queue for Free Soup in Canada Headlined in British Newspapers

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. David McClure of suburban Scarborough said today she has been offered "a few shillings to buy vegetables" by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth Davenport of Belfast.

Mrs. McClure said Mrs. Davenport wrote enclosing British newspaper clippings with headlines such as "They queue for free soup in Canada now," and "New life in Canada? Misery they say."

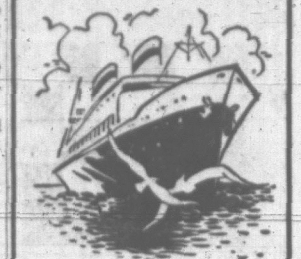

Mrs. McClure said she returned to Belfast last September for a visit and tried to convince her sister-in-law that she wasn't suffering here but failed.

"I pointed out that we had a new car here and could save enough money for a trip home, but they said we were just one of the lucky families. I got so mad I came back to Toronto after a month instead of staying two months as I'd planned."

"The papers over there have been printing all sorts of ridiculous tales."

Mrs. Davenport had intended to come to Canada herself but changed her mind, Mrs. McClure said.

THEY'RE DOUBTFUL School Board Cool on Taking Dunsmuir Organ

Plans to install a massive organ, once property of the pioneer Dunsmuir family, at Craigdarroch Castle, have hit a snag.

School board authorities have questioned its origin and oppose the installation. Alderman M. H. Mooney bought the old organ on an auction here for $152. On the understanding it had once graced Craigdarroch when the castle was the Dunsmuir home, he planned to replace it there for its historical value.

Local businessmen offered to share the costs. City council congratulated Ald. Mooney.

The organ, said to be worth $5,000 when new, was brought around the Horn from England. But it may never enter the castle, now the home of the Greater Victoria School Board.

Two senior officials say it never came out of the castle. It was located in the Dunsmuir home at Royal Roads, they state.

Furthermore, the organ can't negotiate the stairs to reach the landing where it was to have been set up.

If it did, it would block a beautiful stained glass window. Board officials believe they would have to take out a wall to bring in the organ. They want no part of it.

Ald. Mooney says the organ is still in his possession and he is confident it will eventually be installed at the castle. He says the organ is definitely a former Dunsmuir possession, no matter where it came from, and should be displayed as a museum piece, on the main floor.

They managed to survive and came to Los Angeles. The legendary thing actually happened. She was discovered for the movies on a mail-shop stool while playing hooky from Hollywood High School.

Her first role: as the brazen girl who got raped in They Won't Forget. It won her the title of "sweater girl."

Lana took over where Clara Bow had left off as the symbol of wild youth in Hollywood.

"At 16 they said I was the night-club queen, and I was," she said in an amazingly frank autobiography.

"I liked the boys and the boys liked me. I think men are exciting and the gal who denies that men are exciting is either a lady with no corpuscles or a statue."

Year of Pilgrimages Launched by Israeli

JERUSALEM, (Reuters)—A parchment was read proclaiming this to be a year of pilgrimage to Jerusalem and Mount Zion.

The State of Israel.

The usual Passover pilgrimage was made a specially big event to mark the anniversary.

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, president of the world Zionist organization, led the pilgrims, who included about 8,000 foreign tourists.

Christians Celebrate Fete of Resurrection

LONDON (CP)—Christian worshippers in churches throughout the world, commemorated the Resurrection of Christ on Easter Sunday.

From Jerusalem, the cradle of Christianity, to Communist China, the devout heard retold the joyous story of the Risen Christ.

In much of the United States and parts of Canada, rain, snow and chilly winds put a damper on Easter parades and other displays of holiday finery.

New York City's Easter parade was drowned in a gusty downpour. London reported the coldest Easter Sunday of the century.

In his Easter message, Pope Plus called on world leaders to let the light of Christ bring peace to a darkened world. A cosmopolitan throng estimated at 250,000 jammed St. Peter's Square in Rome to hear the Pope saying there is no better work for Christians than to labor for a just peace.

FORCE NEEDED

In London, the Roman Catholic primate of Britain said governments must sometimes use force for the protection of society. Most Rev. William Godfrey, Archbishop of Westminster, said in certain circumstances involving self-defence there might be justification for using the "most powerful nuclear weapon."

Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, head of the Anglican Church, said that "if a government has to use force for the protection of society against evil-doers, it is doing what God allows it to do."

In Jerusalem, Holy Land pilgrims commemorated the resurrection at two sites where Christ might have been buried—the holy sepulchre and the garden tomb, an empty grave in a garden just outside the city walls.

About 20,000 pilgrims jammed the giant underground basilica of St. Pius X in Lourdes, France, for Easter ceremonies. Included were 500 paralyzed men and women from all parts of France.

Radio Peiping reported several thousand Protestants and Roman Catholics at high masses and holy communion services in Peiping, Shanghai and Canton.

Pilgrims Throng Home to See Stigmata Marks

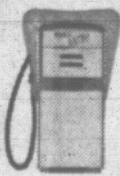

KONNERSREUTH, Germany (AP)—A long line of praying pilgrims shuffled slowly through the modest home of Therese Neumann on Friday to see the crucifixion wounds on her hands and body.

The woman, who will be 60 years old this week, is reported to have suffered the crucifixion stigmata on nearly every Good Friday for the last 32 years. Each year on that day, thousands of persons come to pray outside her home in this tiny Bavarian village and hope for a chance to see her.

As they left the house this year, the visitors said they had seen blood ooze from the backs of the woman's hands, from around her eyes and from her forehead. They also reported a spot of blood on the front of the white gown which she was wearing.

Russians to Top Ripple Rock Bang

LONDON (Reuters) — Soviet Siberian river bed and hasten the filling of a 100,000,000-gallon reservoir. Tass news agency reports.

Do FALSE TEETH Rock, Slide or Slip?

PASTEETH, an improved powder to be sprinkled on upper or lower plates, holds false teeth more firmly in place. Do not slide, slip or rock. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste of denture. PASTEETH is alkaline (non-acid). Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Get PASTEETH at drug counters everywhere.

The series of explosions on the Angara River will enable the filling of the reservoir for the Bratsk hydro-electric dam in two years instead of five.

On Saturday 1,780 tons of explosives were used to blow up Ripple Rock, worst shipping hazard on the Canadian west coast. This was the biggest single non-atomic explosion ever recorded.

FAGS, CANCER LINK PROVED

BERN, Switzerland (UP) — The Swiss federal health office reported today that a seven-year Swiss study shows "there can be no doubt left about a direct connection between the number of cigarettes consumed and lung cancer."

"The rate of lung cancer among smokers who do not smoke cigarettes and non-smokers shows a small but marked difference," the report said.

The health office said most cigarette filters checked by chemists so far are "unsatisfactory."

One Radio Dead In U.S. Satellite

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the two transmitters on the Navy satellite Vanguard went dead Saturday night, its chemical batteries apparently exhausted.

However, the Naval Research Laboratory said the other transmitter, which is powered by solar cells, is still functioning in the six-inch test satellite which was launched on March 17. Scientists have said this transmitter could keep going for five to 10 years.

'Bill of Rights' Urged For Sportsmen in B.C.

CHEMAINUS — A "Sportsmen's Bill of Rights" is badly needed in B.C., district fisheries biologist Dave Hurn of Nanaimo told the Rotary Club here.

Historically, he said, citizens had always understood the resources of the country belonged to them. They had assumed the right to hunt and fish wherever they wanted. However, pressures of the recreational use of these resources are growing at a tremendous rate and these assumed rights are bumping up against those rights assumed by landowners and businessmen.

Mr. Hurn said he felt the natural resources, fish, game, wildlife and scenic beauty, belonged to the people at large, and not vested interests.

AFFECTS ALL

In 1957 the value of B.C.'s natural resources to the economy of the province was $104,000,000.

"This had some affect on all of us," he said.

Another problem facing the sportsman is that of access. On Vancouver Island, 95 per cent of hunting and fishing pressure takes place within the E and N land belt, only 3 per cent of which is Crown land.

PROBLEM

While the province owns all the waters in B.C., the bottoms in the E and N belt belong to the railway company, causing an access problem, he said.

In many places on the Island, good hunting and fishing areas are closed to sportsmen because the lands around them are privately held.

The Highland district near Victoria is a good example. Although there are several good lakes in the area only 13 miles from the city, they are seldom used because the land around them is private, Mr. Hurn said.

CAN'T GET NEAR

In the near future there is going to have to be a resolution permitting sportsmen to hunt and fish for resources which are rightfully theirs, he said.

"It is my opinion that unless a Sportsmen's Bill of Rights is drawn up and backed by effective legislation then we are going to have a situation where we have plenty of game but can't get at it," he said.

M & B Workers Give $100 To Polio Drive.

CHEMAINUS — A $100 cheque from the Employees Organized Charities and Mutual Aid Fund of MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd., Chemainus Division, brought the local Kinsmen Club's campaign for the B.C. Child Care and Polio Fund up to a total of $1,918.

Still to be added to this total are receipts from sale of soft drink bottles collected in a bottle drive.

'Games' Tryout For Williams

CHEMAINUS — Skimp Williams, who won the "Hard Luck Loser" trophy in the B.C. Golden Gloves boxing tournament at Vancouver last week-end, has been invited to try out for the Canadian British Empire Games boxing team.

Members of the team will be selected following elimination bouts in Vancouver May 8 and 9. Williams boxes in the 147-pound division.

REGISTRATION SUNDAY FOR YOUNG BALLPLAYERS

CHEMAINUS — Registration for Pony, Colt and Connie Mack League baseball will be held in the large Community Hall Sunday at 2 p.m.

All youngsters between the ages of 15 and 19 interested in playing minor league ball are asked to turn out.

Community Centre officials hope to enter two teams in the Ladysmith Pony League and one team in a Colt League made up of teams from Chemainus, Ladysmith, Lake Cowichan and Duncan or Nanaimo. If enough lads 18 and 19 register, they will combine with players from Ladysmith to form one team which will enter the Victoria league.

Centennial Fun Fair Makes $500 at Sooke

SOOKE — About $500 was cleared at the Centennial Fun Fair sponsored by Sooke-Milnes Landing PTA on the weekend.

The fair was held in Milnes Landing High School, while pupils of Sooke Elementary School were responsible for the decorations, which followed the Centennial theme, with "Century Sam" predominating.

The candy booth was decorated with butterfly baskets made by the children. Red, yellow and green hunting was effectively used throughout the auditorium.

Prize winners were Mrs. R. Helm, electric frying pan; Terry Helgesen, electric toaster; Mrs. F. Rudd, grocery hamper; E. Pollard, roast of beef; Jack

More Boat Space Due At Chemainus Wharf

CHEMAINUS — Improvements to be made to the government wharf this year will double the space available for small boats, secretary Reg Harwood told the Chemainus-Crofton and district Chamber of Commerce.

The federal government plans to shorten the present wharf, provide for a complete turnaround at the end, and do considerable dredging work. Additional small boat floats will be installed on the shore side.

A letter from Provincial Secretary W. D. Black advised that the day was past when mental hospitals are placed in areas far removed from the larger centres of population. This put the final damper on any thoughts the chamber had entertained for having the new Vancouver Island mental hospital built here.

Mr. Harwood noted that the membership of the chamber had increased from 33 to 53 in the last four months.

Cab Driver Faces Loss of Car For Bootlegging

PORT ALBERNI — Taxi-driver Ronald L. Redlac faces loss of his cab after pleading guilty to a charge of illegal sale of liquor from a car.

He was fined $300, and the prosecutor said under the Liquor Act the magistrate had no alternative but to order confiscation of the vehicle involved.

An inquiry will be made during the 30-day appeal period in view of the fact that this was

Hotel at Westview Looted of $5,000

POWELL RIVER, B.C. (CP) — Thieves stole a 500-pound safe containing about $5,000 in cash and cheques from the Marine Hotel at nearby Westview at the weekend. Roadblocks were set up by RCMP to check incoming ferries from the Sechart Peninsula.

FIRE CHIEF CALLS OWN SON:

'Regular Little Firebug'

DUNCAN (CP) — The son of Chief Pat Clackson of the North Cowichan Volunteer Fire Brigade is a "firebug" — in the expert opinion of his father.

Chief Clackson's investigation disclosed that his seven-year-old boy was one of three children responsible for lighting fires under Cowichan High School Thursday. He said he was certain they did not realize the possible consequences.

"But if the fire marshal decides to lay charges it's all right with me," he said. "It might throw a scare into my son, who I must admit is a regular little firebug. Fire fascinates him."

The boys were exploring the labyrinth of passages under the school and lit tarpaper torches that caused smoke to issue from vents in the building. An alarm was turned in at 2 p.m., but there was no damage.

WIDE VARIETY OF PICTURES TELL ROCK BLAST STORY

In the nine seconds it took for Ripple Rock to blow "sky high," an infinite variety of photographs showing the awesome beauty of the spectacle were captured by scores of news and private cameramen.

Almost every "still" picture is different, with a fraction of a second making the difference, along with varied exposures and shutter speeds which changed shadings and density of the blast details recorded on

RIPPLE ROCK WARNING IGNORED

Metal Plaque to Record 'Daring'

The blast was over in seconds but the stories are still erupting. Campbell River residents Bill Aldridge and Ed McCabe claim they were the only two close-up, unauthorized witnesses to the Ripple Rock blast Saturday—and they are putting up a metal plaque to record their daring.

Aldridge, a lift operator in the pre-explosion tunnels beneath Ripple Rock, and rancher McCabe built a secret bomb shelter overlooking the scene.

Victor Dolmage, said he never had any doubts about the success of the blast. He called it "... the smoothest job ever performed."

The boom may be over for Campbell River in more than one sense.

Ripple Rock got an appropriate farewell before being blown apart. Flags above the distinguished spectators' bunker 7,000 feet from blast site were arranged to read in marine signal code: "Goodbye Dangerous Ripple Rock."

Workmen's Compensation Board safety inspector John Coggins says there wasn't a serious accident during the 27 months of hard-rock tunnelling which preceded the blast.

He made 14 trips to the scene, praised Col. Cy North, project manager and superintendents Bill Grieve and Jack Buchanan. The man who pushed the button and blew the twin peaks of Ripple Rock into pebbles, Dr.

Perhaps the big blast didn't shake urban areas—but it cleared the streets in Victoria. Residents stayed close to TV screens at zero hour. Main streets put on their Sunday appearance.

Owner of Adams Resort, Milton Adams, ignored instructions to leave his location 2½ miles from Ripple Rock, instead took refuge in a natural granite bunker with his wife, children and six guests. He said rock rained down within 1,000 feet. Fifteen tame deer which frequent his property have departed. He saw some blackfish swim by, acting "quite funny."

Rock landed also on Wilfred Point and Maud Island on either side of Seymour Narrows and some trees were knocked down.

CGS Parry, a hydrographic survey boat moored at Menzies Bay was rocked by heavy waves following the blast. A ramp on a wharf was loosened.

Two photographers slipped past RCMP guards to get explosion pictures. They landed a seaplane at a Quadra Island beach, set up their cameras, then missed the explosion.

Thinking it was cancelled, they hiked up a nearby bluff. The show was over when they returned to their vantage point.

A charter bus shuttled between Campbell River and vantage point Frog Lake, 10 miles from John Hart dam and about four miles from Ripple Rock.

It carried 637 persons to the early morning show. Gathered at bonfires, the watchers kept in touch with the operation with car and portable radios.

About 8,500 residents stayed home or at their place of business, heard and saw little but a heavy rainfall which started right after the explosion.

A young seaman from HMCS Fortune in RCN Hospital with internal injuries following a freak accident at Port Renfrew late last Wednesday, still is in serious condition, it was learned today.

AB K. H. Barlow was rushed by naval ambulance in the middle of the night to Naden Hospital.

MONTE ROBERTS

REQUIEM FOR A ROCK
Alas, poor Ripple! Alas, alas, alas, from all who knew him well. And all who knew him well, wished him well. Well out of the way. Alas, poor Ripple, he who did no active harm, he who raised no hand in anger, fired no gun nor wielded knife nor knuckles brass. But just sat there. Just sat there, and was he to blame when voyageurs of little skill, Bounced off his noggin, chipping pieces off his top with their metal hulls? Posterity will say, was he to blame or not to blame, but public opinion's court of NOW has said its say. And before the bar of this cruel court, alas, Ripple was found guilty, and sentenced. Sentenced to disintegration, to be watched by all the nation. Thus came the end, alas, of Ripple, he who arose out of the crust of the earth as it cooled its fire when cast out as a satellite of the sun. He who sat serenely while the salt waves of the ocean changed him from a minor mountain to a major undersea menace—as the cruel court of public opinion termed him. He who sat serenely, just sat there. Until the time has come to produce the small notice for the back pages of the newspaper: "Ripple Rock. Born when the earth was born, died when man decreed." And with his death, his name has changed. No longer Ripple Rock, but, R.I.P., Rock.

According to unofficial reports the man fell on his closed fist as he jumped from the ship's deck to the government jetty shortly before midnight.

Holidayers Flocked To Churches, Parks

Winter "hibernation" officially ended Sunday for thousands of Victorians who donned their Easter finery for church services, then took to the roads for a sunny afternoon at the beaches, parks and golf courses. High temperature recorded here Sunday was 61 degrees. In the interior the temperature reached 67 degrees in Abbotsford and a balmy 68 in Hope.

Seven services in Christ Church Cathedral were attended by capacity crowds.

Latecomers were shown to chairs along the walls and at the rear of the church. Other churches also reported heavy attendance.

After church, Victorians really got down to the business of pleasure. Cars packed the Island Highway leading from Victoria as sun-seekers headed for up-land beauty spots.

Locally, hundreds basked in the sun at Willows and other beaches, at neighboring lakes and parks.

Other city courses were crowded. Weatherman Mackie today could see no let-up in the sunny weather that has bathed Victoria for a week.

No Suspects In Child Attack

Three-year-old Charlene Dick, victim of a vicious beating Thursday afternoon outside her aunt's home at 2976 Colquitz, is in "satisfactory condition" at Jubilee Hospital today, and police report no suspects have been located.

The child suffered 14 to 20 rib fractures, partially collapsed lungs, bruises and abrasions in an attack which her aunt said was made by two boys about seven or eight years old.

V.I. Farms Welcome New Price Supports

Incentive to Maintain Butter, Egg Production

A B.C. farm organization official said higher price supports announced in Ottawa today will encourage farmers here to maintain production of butter and eggs. Charles Walls, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, said declining profits have reduced farm production of butter to a low level.

The higher floor prices will protect producers from suffering losses but will not necessarily mean increased retail prices to consumers, he said.

GAGLARDI SHIFTING INTO REVERSE

Highways Minister Philip Gagliardi has given his engineers a novel set of marching orders—go back 100 years. Department engineers now are scouting old yards and warehouses throughout the province for every horse-drawn shovel and hand-operated tool they can find. But the hunt isn't an all-out attempt to find the reserves for one massive campaign of annihilation against all potholes and bumps on B.C. roads.

Vic High Teacher To Attend Seminar at UBC

Victoria High School teacher D. E. Smith will attend the province's first high school counsellors' seminar at the University of British Columbia, opening Thursday.

ASK The TIMES

Q. Could you please tell me how to get rid of ants which are invading our home?
—"Distressed."
A. There are many reputable insecticides particularly formulated to combat ants. These are available from most hardware, feed and drug stores, varying in price upwards from as little as 25 cents. These are for both home and outdoor use, depending on the type. However, if possible, the best bet is to find the source of ants outside and destroy the nest or nests. In your cupboards, keep sugar and salt tightly covered. They attract the pests.
Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times." Editor, Questions and Answers will be published daily.
All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

Flower-Scented Cards Just Like the Real Thing!

By PENNY SAVER

Mmm-m! What a delightful scent! I'm talking about the new authentically scented floral cards. These beautiful (and almost real looking) masterpieces have roses, carnations, and a dozen other types of posies painted in pastels on the covers and, as you open the outer leaf, a bouquet of posies pops out, and you get a whiff of the true scent of the actual flower that are on the card.

I took a sniff at the carnation card and it was exactly like the real thing. Wonderful to send to a sick friend, eh? They're priced at 25 cents each!

Find letter writing paper just a little dull? Then you're the one who would go for hand-painted floral stationery. To make it more interesting, the paintings on this notepaper are reproductions by Emily Sartain, world famous artist (who by the way is a Victorian).

For centennial year, a selection of notepaper has arrived bearing the four better known British Columbia wild flowers, the dog-tooth lily, shooting star, blue camass and the India paint brush. Reproduced from Miss Sartain's paintings, these lovely examples of her work are tasteful and attractive for letter writing. A box of 12 is priced at $1. Also in the collection of stationery by Miss Sartain I found reproductions of English wild flowers. Such beauties as the field poppy, ox-eye daisy and the bee orchid (so well known to our friends from overseas) have been so well painted you'd think the flowers were real! These are also $1 a box.

Did you know that there is nothing quite so useful as a gift of stationery for a friend with a birthday? Well, you know now!

From the sunny islands of Fiji come women's silk and cotton pyjamas. These ever so attractive garments for spring and summer wear have colorful embroidery on collar and pocket. Here again we find a gift for birthday or anniversary. What a buy, too... just a mere $2.98!

Of Personal Interest

Home for Weekend

Miss Hilary Hale, University of British Columbia student, spent the past weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Hale, at the family home on Newport Avenue. She will return to Vancouver and her studies tonight.

Attends Meeting

Mrs. Leslie Macdonnell has recently returned from Vancouver where she attended a mid-term executive meeting of the Auxiliaries Division, British Columbia Hospitals' Association, where plans were made for the 14th annual convention to be held in Vancouver Hotel in October. Present at the meeting were members from Prince George, White Rock, Trail, Chemainus, Abbotsford and Vancouver.

An Easter Shower

Mrs. David Calland, the former Miss Joyce Watkins, whose marriage took place Saturday, was honored recently at a shower given by Mrs. N. Lucas and Mrs. N. Hale, at the latter's home, Millstream Road, Langford. A corsage of red carnations was presented to the bride-elect and her mother, Mrs. E. Watkins, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. E. Calland, received corsages of pink carnations. A gaily decorated basket held gifts. There were 19 invited guests.

At B.C. House

Victorians who have signed the register at British Columbia House in London, England, recently include Mr. Bill Ozard, Mr. Gerry Cowan, Miss Marjorie F. Bennetts, Mr. A. E. Wallis, Miss Mary Bell, and Mrs. M. E. Stein. Visitors from Duncan, B.C., at B.C. House recently have been Mrs. N. M. Holmes and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Allen.

Daughter Here

Mrs. Alan H. Edwards who has been spending the past months as a guest at Oak Bay Beach hotel, has returned to her home on Quadra Street. She has as her guest her daughter, Mrs. E. H. Read of Drumheller, Alta.

To Mainland

Victorians who traveled to Vancouver for the wedding of Miss Marguerite Soles and Mr. Clifford Cecil Madill, Saturday afternoon, were Miss Joyce Whitehead, Miss Pat Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Onasey and Mr. Robert Slater. From Sidney went Mr. and Mrs. E. Lassfolk.

"It is amazing that all but one of the students who entered last year's festival and then sat for the Toronto Conservatory examinations received first-class honors or honors in their exams," said Mrs. Wood, who also adjudicated the festival last year.

She accounts for the high standard of work at the convent by the fact that the 36 teaching sisters are permitted to leave the convent in the summer months to go out and study.

Compared to the Victoria festival the convent festival is a small one, with 271 individual competitors as well as choruses of about 80 students. The Greater Victoria festival usually draws 800 or 900 individual entrants.

JUNIOR MANNEQUINS

Evelyn Butler, 8½, and Deborah Mason, 5½, are among pupils of Wynne Shaw Dance School who will act as mannequins at a tea and display of children's clothes to be presented by the St. Matthias' Evening Guild in the parish hall, Richmond Road and Richardson Street, on Wednesday at 2.30 p.m. Proceeds will go toward improving the grounds of the new church. Fashions are being presented by the Stork and Tween-Age Shop.

Enthusiasm Carries Crowds To Prince Albert Festival

A music festival in Prince Albert draws bigger crowds than a music festival in Victoria.

Back from the Saskatchewan city, where she adjudicated all classes in a music festival put on by the Academy Presentation of Mary, local teacher of singing, Mrs. Roberto Wood, has nothing but praise for organization and keen following of the three-day event.

"At 9 a.m. the festival hall would be practically filled with adults waiting to hear the early classes," she said. "Afternoon sessions were equally well attended and at the final evening session there was a capacity crowd."

"It would be wonderful if Victorians would take as much interest in our local festival." (The Victoria Music Festival this year runs from April 29 to May 9.)

Enthusiasm of entrants and of concert sisters who teach them was extremely high.

"The sisters had everything very well organized," Mrs. Wood said. "For example, all music given to me for reference was neatly indexed so that any selection could be easily found."

"The majority of the classes in the festival were piano," said Mrs. Wood, who is an accomplished pianist, as well as being a voice specialist.

In all, there were 58 classes, which included piano solo, duet and two piano, violin solo and ensemble, vocal solo, duet, trio and ensemble classes.

Most of the test pieces were taken from the Royal Conservatory.

Interesting Antiques on Display at WA Luncheon

Mrs. A. G. Atkins exhibited an old brass tea urn from Tibet and a ceremonial tea cup that stood on a stand under which red coals burned, at an exhibition of antiques held in connection with a pot luck luncheon under auspices of the Gordon United Church Women's Association at Langford.

The story of how the tea was prepared and kept hot throughout all phases of the tea ceremony was also explained by Mrs. Atkins.

Mrs. F. Fowler showed her collection of Korean and Japanese dolls; Mrs. C. F. Moseley exhibited a bible and told about the church where it had been used; Mrs. E. LeQueune had an ancient coffee maker from Scotland and Mrs. K. Dillabough a candlestick that had been used in early days.

Mrs. Clifton Parker described the history of an old totem pole from the Queen Charlotte Islands. Also displayed was a china jug, 160 years old.

Luncheon was arranged by Mrs. Moseley and Mrs. F. Fowler. The buffet table was arranged with flowering wild currant and daffodils. A sum of $18 was realized.

A Gown of Taffeta Brocade Worn By Shirley Green on Wedding Day

Of wide interest was the wedding Saturday evening in St. John's Anglican Church, of Miss Shirley Ann Green, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Maurice Green, of Victoria, and Albert Clarence Schmidt, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Schmidt, of Richmond, B.C.

Canon George Biddle officiated at the ceremony. Traditional organ music was played by Frederick Chubb.

An exquisite gown of white taffeta brocade was worn by the bride, the bodice styled with a Sabrina neckline and the full skirt extending into a slight train. A finger-tip veil misted from her sequin-studded coronet and she carried a bouquet of pink roses, white carnations and stephanotis. She was given in marriage by her father.

The maid of honor, Miss Bonnie Green, the bride's sister, wore a spring leaf green dress of taffeta. The neckline was in Sabrina style with matching organza trimming. Her head-dress was of roses in matching material to the dress and she carried a bouquet of white carnations. Miss Ruth Green, as bridesmaid, wore an identically styled dress of pink orchid taffeta trimmed with matching organza. Her head-dress was also of roses in matching material and she carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Robert Sobiski was best man and ushering guests to their seats were Stanley Jones and Joseph Milkovich.

Easter lilies, dogwood and spring blossoms decorated the Victoria Golf Club for the wedding reception, where the bride's table was covered with a cut-work cloth made by her aunt. Toast-to-the-bride's happiness was proposed by Dr. J. A. Stewart.

For travelling by car to the United States on honeymoon, the new Mrs. Schmidt wore a dusty pink cashmere coat over a sky blue jersey wool dress. Her hat was pink and the accessories were black. A gardenia corsage completed the ensemble.

On return the young couple will live in New Westminster.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mrs. D. R. Blade, Mrs. Arthur May, Mr. and Mrs. William Schmidt and Mr. and Mrs. S. LeBlanc.

Big Exporter Backs TCA In Squabble Over Service

One of Vancouver Island's largest flower exporters today disagreed with two Saanich daffodil growers that Trans-Canada Air Lines is "ruining" the daffodil industry because of a poor service.

Ray Wooldridge, Pacific Flowers Ltd., who exports about 50 per cent of the flowers grown on Vancouver Island, said TCA did a "first class job" in shipping flowers to eastern Canada for Easter.

He was commenting on complaints from Geoffrey Vantreight, 4423 Tyndall, and Wil-

$100,000 COIN DISPLAY

HBC Room Becomes 'House of Midas'

The Douglas Room on the third floor of the Hudson's Bay Company today is a veritable house of Midas.

On display are thousands of rare coins, medals and bills from throughout the world, sufficient to make even the heart of a poverty-vowed friar thump faster.

The collection, largest temporary display of its kind ever assembled in Canada, is valued at $100,000. That's the accountant's value, but the traditions, memories, heroism and sufferings represented by the collection cannot be estimated.

UNTIL SATURDAY

The display was opened this afternoon by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross before a limited number of dignitaries, and will be open to the public from 9 a.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

The show was made possible by contributions of rare money and medals from the 60-member Vancouver Island Numismatic Society. Host here is the society's Victoria branch.

Among the intensely interesting presentations are Canadian five-cent pieces of every year back to 1858, the first date of minting; an 1820 HBC five-shilling note issued at York Factory; an 1824 five-pound bill from Nova Scotia—plus coins and bills that set the mind singing about far away places and times—Muscat and Oman,

B.C.'s Youth Becoming More Forest Conscious

B.C.'s youth is growing more forest conscious, an annual meeting of the Canadian Forestry Association will be told Tuesday.

The two-day program in Vancouver combines the annual meetings of the CFA and its B.C. branch. It marks the first time the national body has chosen a western Canada location for its yearly meeting of directors.

Brian B. Gattie, B.C. branch president, will be chairman of an opening luncheon. J. A. Vance, national chairman of CFA, will speak on conservation of Canada's water resources.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray G. Williston will be guest speaker at a centennial luncheon Wednesday.

NEW DISTRICTS

Mr. Gattie will deliver the provincial branch's annual report, showing 11 new warden districts were set up by the junior forest warden committee during 1957.

freight service we are getting in Canada."

He said TCA charged less for freight than any other privately-owned air service in Canada and western United States.

"It is true that TCA has made blunders in the past," he said, "but sometimes the mistakes have been caused by shippers. An aircraft company can't conjure planes out of thin air to meet a sudden demand."

Wallace Courtney, TCA manager here, said out of seven major Island shippers, Mr. Mattick and Mr. Vantreight were the only two growers to complain about the air service.

POOR CONDITIONS

"We have received no other complaints," he added. "We know of only one shipment of flowers which was delayed, and that was because of poor flying conditions. It was unavoidable."

He said Easter traffic started to move earlier this year due to the advanced season. During March, TCA shipped over 66 tons of flowers from the Island to other parts of Canada.

During the Easter week, about 40 additional tons were shipped from Patricia Bay.

"The flowers represent about 70 per cent of the total flower traffic shipped to the East from British Columbia," he said. "The balance is shipped from the mainland."

Meteorologist From City At U.S. Parley

A large gap in forest fire prevention knowledge will be filled by a Victoria meteorologist attending the Western Fire Weather Conference which opened today in Portland, Ore.

J. A. Turner, department of transport meteorologist attached to the B.C. Forest Service, will present a scientific paper to the three-day meeting of some 50 foresters and meteorologists.

The paper is an index, based on a three-year study, showing the fire danger build-up for various slow-burning forest fuels.

It will give logging operators a scientific formula for determining potential fire danger existing in their log supplies. The information has not been available previously.

NEW CALIFORNIA RAINS WOULD REPEAT DISASTER

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—All dams and reservoirs in California's central valley river system were critically full today and state officials warned that new heavy rains in the next 48 hours would bring inevitable flood disaster.

The weather forecast was hopeful—only showers were predicted for today. But more than 100,000 acres of fertile farmland lay under water, 2,000 persons still were homeless and 12 were dead in the last of a series of disastrous spring rainstorms. Property damage in the last week alone was estimated at more than 12 million dollars.

'FREEDOM' HAS ANSWER

Titled Woman Here To Promote Film

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Lady Eleanor Cole, a great-granddaughter of Britain's poet statesman Bulwer Lytton, has come to Victoria to help promote the Moral Rearmament film "Freedom," which will be given its B.C. premiere at the Odeon Theatre April 14 and 15.

As British Colonial Secretary in 1858, Bulwer Lytton was actively interested in the birth of British Columbia as a crown colony.

"For that reason alone, I am delighted to be visiting your great province during its centennial year," gracious, quiet-spoken Lady Eleanor said.

DIVINE PASSAGE

"But that is not the main reason. More than anything else in this world, I want people everywhere to receive the divine message this film carries."

"It could be the answer to racial problems the world over."

Lady Eleanor has lived in Kenya, East Africa, since 1916 when she married the late Hon. Gaibraith Cole, son of the fourth Earl of Enniskillen. They owned two ranches comprising some 80,000 acres, but since joining Moral Rearmament, Lady Eleanor has turned the property over to her sons.

"The Mau Mau terrorism, fomented by outside influences, convinced me that Kenya needed a spiritual re-birth and I am certain that Moral Rearmament has the answer."

"This film 'Freedom' offers the answer to all the bitter-nesses enslaving this world today, and I am dedicating my whole time and effort to its promotion."

The film has a cast of 10,000 Africans, among them prominent political leaders and businessmen. It is being shown across Canada by the British J. Arthur Rank organization, starting in Victoria and moving on to Vancouver and points east.

Lady Eleanor believes that Moral Rearmament, as a Christian movement dedicated to honesty, purity, unselfishness and love, can lead Kenya along the right path to freedom.

She is accompanied on her Canadian tour by Wing Commander Edward Howell, a long-service veteran of the Royal Air Force, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Nanton of Winnipeg.

Wing Commander Howell wrote of his wartime experiences in the book "Escape to Live." He emphasizes that people of "widely varied backgrounds" are being attracted to Moral Rearmament.

Lady Eleanor Cole was raised at Whittingehame, near Edinburgh. Her uncle was Lord Balfour, a former Prime Minister of Britain, and her brother is the present Lord Balfour.

During a visit to Moral Rearmament headquarters at Caux, Switzerland, three years ago, she met Dr. Frank Buchman, 80-year-old founder of the movement.

"He is still an active and inspiring leader," she said.

DROP IN DISEASES, DEATH

UN Health Body Scores Victories On Non-Political Battleground

Editor's note: The World Health Organization is among the lesser-known organs of the United Nations. But in the 10 years since its founding, it has scored some major victories on a non-political battleground.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A sanitation engineer for the World Health Organization was recently severely clawed in the jungle by a leopard before killing it with pistol shots.

The leopard episode was just a melodramatic interlude in the steady warfare against malaria in the tiny Asian kingdom of Nepal, between India and Red China.

WHO celebrates its 10th anniversary today as an 88-nation organization. It is headed by Dr. M. S. Candon of Brazil, Dr. Brock Chisholm of Canada is a former director-general.

The mission of WHO — an agency of the United Nations — is to co-ordinate international health work and to assist governments in strengthening their health services.

The organization works to prevent infectious diseases, to train health workers, improve sanitary conditions in more than 100 countries, warn of outbreaks of epidemic disease anywhere in the world and recommend international standards for drugs and vaccines.

WHO officials cite these examples of world health progress in which their organization played a significant part.

1. A phenomenal decline in mortality throughout the world, attributable mainly to advances in sanitation and disease control. In some countries under-going rapid development, "life expectancy at birth has increased up to 11 years for girls and 10 years for boys."

2. There has been a decline in pestilential diseases such as cholera, typhus, smallpox, plague, relapsing fever and yellow fever. In fact, cholera now is a problem only in India and Pakistan.

Disappearing from Europe and North America—and declining in other countries—is epidemic typhus.

3. Whereas malaria, up to 1948, attacked 300,000,000 people throughout much of the world each year, killing 3,000,000, these totals have been cut by 30 per cent in 10 years of anti-malaria campaigns.

The disease, however, still presents a huge international problem.

4. Among other strides: Tuberculosis is killing relatively fewer people each year, but still remains the greatest killer of all infectious and parasitic diseases.

Since the advent of penicillin and other antibiotics, there has been a substantial decrease in the number of deaths from pneumonia, but pneumonia still ranks among the 10 diseases causing the greatest number of deaths in the more developed countries.

IN CANCER CAMPAIGN

Dockyard Workers To Inspect Clinic

Some 25 representatives of naval and civilian personnel at HMC Dockyard will tour Victoria Cancer Clinic Tuesday to gather first-hand knowledge before canvassing on behalf of the Victoria Conquer Cancer campaign.

The month-long campaign, directed locally by Dugald Gillespie, is aiming for a goal of $250,000 in B.C. to fight Canada's No. 2 killer disease.

A similar tour and luncheon will be held Tuesday, April 15, for provincial government representatives.

The Conquer Cancer appeal is directed to business and community organizations, trade unions, professional groups, service clubs, fraternities, women's organizations and youth clubs.

Campaign headquarters are in the Black Ball Ferry Building, 816 Wharf Street, phone 2-3442.

Alley Slaying Still Unsolved

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police investigation into the slaying of Mrs. Evelyn Mary Roache was stymied Sunday night after a weekend of following trails that were described as "red herrings."

Detectives questioned three men at police headquarters and released them when they established alibis for the evening of the 39-year-old woman's death.

Mrs. Roache, mother of two children, was found stabbed to death late Thursday in a lane a block from her home. There were wounds in her back, chest and throat.

ON RUSS TEST BAN

West Cool To New Plea

LONDON (CP) — Russia has made a new appeal through its new premier, Nikita Khrushchev, for a halt to nuclear weapons tests, but Western reaction follows the same line as in previous Kremlin overtures for such suspensions.

Diplomatic circles in London said they saw nothing new in Khrushchev's weekend call on the West to halt atomic weapons tests as Russia claims she will do. The West continues to insist on no suspension without guarantees.

In Washington, United States officials dismissed the latest message as "nothing but a repetition" of Foreign Minister Gromyko's announcement in the Supreme Soviet last week that Russia was halting her tests.

Khrushchev's note, a follow-up to this announcement, warned that Russia would repudiate its unilateral commitment if the West did not follow its lead.

OTHER NOTES

Russian notes also were sent to West Germany and Norway, both NATO countries, but no comment was forthcoming there.

Khrushchev, now on a visit to Hungary, today was visiting the small town of Cegled, about 100 miles southwest of Budapest.

The Soviet leader was accompanied by Istvan Dobi, president of the Hungarian parliament, and Hungarian politburo members. After a much-applauded address by Khrushchev at Cegled, the group left for the town of Szolnok.

The contents of Khrushchev's speech were not disclosed by radio Budapest.

Long Education Motion Before Monterey PTA

A lengthy motion dealing with education, similar to one put before Royal Oak High School PTA in February, will be proposed at a meeting of Monterey PTA, Tuesday, April 15.

Aimed at stiffening education in B.C., it calls for compulsory homework for all grades "where necessary," separation of non-academic and academic courses, less pupils per teacher and compulsory written examinations at the end of each school year.

The nine-part motion will be moved by John D. Taylor, a member of the association.

TO GOVERNMENT

If approved it would be sent to the provincial department of education and the next meeting of Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council.

The motion, in full, asks for: 1. Courses in the sciences, history, geography and French to start at the primary level, leading to intensification of the courses up to high school level.

2. Compulsory written examinations being applied universally at the end of each school year and results being expressed in numerical form together with a frank and direct appraisal of each child's ability and conduct.

3. Consideration being given to adoption of some form of compulsory school uniform.

4. Special facilities and guidance being provided for pupils of outstanding intellectual capacity.

5. Where necessary, to augment classroom study, students being given compulsory homework right through to high school level.

6. Separation of the non-academic courses at present taught in high schools from academic courses, the non-academic courses to be taught in other school facilities.

7. Cost of erecting school building being trimmed, in particular by reduction of expenditures for gymnasiums, auditoriums, cafeterias and other facilities not essential to education and the money used to further academic learning.

8. The number of pupils under each teacher being reduced.

9. Teachers' salaries being increased substantially and other effective means used to attract more and better qualified persons into the teaching profession.

Top Civil Servant Resigns In Row With Ottawa Gov't

Deputy Trade Minister Out

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Mitchell W. Sharp, deputy minister of trade and commerce, one of the ablest senior members of the federal civil service is resigning his government post.

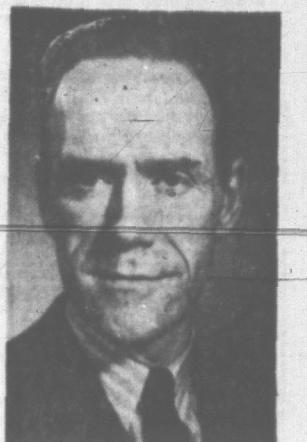

Mr. Sharp's resignation will be effective at the end of April. The deputy minister who has been closely associated with the federal government's trade and commerce policies over a number of years as well as administering trade and commerce policies has had a number of attractive offers from private firms. Mr. Sharp declined to confirm or deny he would be leaving the government's service.

"I have no comment, it will all come out in due course," he said.

Trade Minister Gordon Churchill said he had already granted Mr. Sharp a month's leave of absence effective March 31.

However, Mr. Churchill disclosed he had received at noon a copy of Mr. Sharp's resignation letter which was addressed to Prime Minister John Diefenbaker.

There has been a great deal of speculation ever since the Conservative government first took office last June that it would make several changes involving personnel in the public service, once it obtained a safe majority. There were rumors after the June election that more than one key civil servant would find conditions such that he would prefer to resign after the Conservatives assumed office with a large majority. While not wishing to leave the public service, Mr. Sharp was understood to be ready to resign if he did not have the full confidence of the new government. The fact that he is resigning would indicate that Mr. Churchill has made no effort to retain Mr. Sharp in the public service.

No Decision on Successor

Mr. Churchill declined to comment on a possible successor. He said he naturally had given the matter some thought but he had no statement to make at this time.

Mr. Sharp's resignation will probably be followed by others.

During the last session of parliament there were rumblings among the private members on the government side that suggested that more than one prominent member of the civil service would find a less than congenial atmosphere in which to work. A. D. McPhillips, Progressive Conservative member for Victoria, B.C., made a speech in the Commons in which he attacked some members of the federal civil service claiming that they had worked too long with the Liberal administration and should be shifted out of their posts.

Under such circumstances more than one member of the civil service is reported to be giving serious consideration to lucrative offers from private business or industry when they are made. Mr. Sharp has been in government service for 16 years, first with the department of finance and then with the trade department. He was appointed assistant deputy trade minister in 1950. The following year he became associate deputy minister, taking over the top trade department civil service post of deputy minister last year. Mr. Sharp's signature was on the controversial "hidden report" which Prime Minister Diefenbaker maintained gave the former Liberal administration an indication that trade recession was beginning early last year.

NEW VIOLENCE ROCKS CYPRUS

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters)—A wave of bomb attacks continued today with fresh explosions that brought the total to 34 since April 1, third anniversary of the EOKA terrorist organization. No deaths were reported.

The outlawed EOKA group supports union of this British island colony with Greece.

During the night, masked terrorists blew up a police station at Koutraphas, 25 miles west of here.

In one of the most daring raids for months, they forced Cypriot policemen to leave the building, bored holes in the walls and inserted dynamite charges.

11 Killed When Train Crushes Car

Quebec Victims
Were All Related

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A car-train crash near Sherbrooke, Que., in which 11 persons, all related, were killed, sent Canada's accidental death toll for the three-day Easter holiday soaring to at least 48. Seven of the Quebec crash dead were children.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local time Thursday until midnight Sunday showed 35 persons died in traffic mishaps. There were four drownings—three in Ontario and one in Quebec—and two fire deaths, one in Ontario, one in Manitoba.

Quebec reported the highest number of deaths—21, 18 in traffic. The 11 dead in the level-crossing accident were all in one car returning from an Easter Sunday outing. No one aboard the train was injured.

MAIN LINE BLOCKED

The crash halted all railway traffic on the CPR's Montreal-Maritime mainline. Killed were: Elidor Larose, 38, of Waterloo, Que., his wife, 38, and their five children, Ronald, 14, Ginette, 12, Jean Pierre, 9, Alain, 5, and Andre, 2; Jean Claude Roy, 27, of Joliette, Que.; his wife, 23, and their two children, Marcel, 4, and Micheline, 3. The two families were related.

Mrs. Axel Setter and daughter Darlene, 14, of Spirit River, Alta., along with Louis Vektoris, 51, of Edmonton, died in a two-car collision Friday near Ponoka, 60 miles south of Edmonton.

British Columbia's violent deaths occurred Saturday.

A two-car collision near Burnaby took the life of Joe Weinberg. Andrew Heaven, 37, fell seven storeys over a railing in a downtown Vancouver hotel.

Vancouver Island police reported a fatality-free holiday, although there were a number of traffic accidents and several persons injured.

LONDON (Reuters)—Eighty-four English soccer teams clashed today in the windup of a heavy schedule of Easter weekend games which brought no major shift in the home stretch race for league honors.

Wolverhampton Wanderers, who lead the first division, notched another win in London, shutting out Arsenal 2-0.

'Ban-Bomb' Marchers Attack Truck, Driver

ALDERMASTON, England (Reuters)—A four-day, 50-mile "Ban the H-bomb" procession ended in a sudden explosion of violence today as marchers forcibly silenced a public address truck attacking them and punched its driver.

As the marchers neared their goal, Britain's nuclear weapons research centre, the truck rolled ahead of them with its loudspeaker blaring: "You are voting with your feet for Soviet imperialist domination."

Marchers unplugged the loudspeaker and pulled it down. They rocked the truck from side to side, denting its luggage compartment and smashing a tail light. The driver was punched and marchers attempted to drag him out of the truck.

A stone was thrown at the sound truck as police fought to keep back about 5,000 marchers and 4,000 spectators milling around in a field near the research centre. Demonstrators wrenched open the truck's back door and ripped up documents inside it.

Finally, police pushed the vehicle back onto the road from the field, site of the marchers' final rally in their long, cold trek from London.

During the melee, the crowd ripped down banners on the truck identifying the anti-nuclear trek as "Khrushchev's union derby." Others shouted the truck should be tipped over. March organizer Miss Pat Arrowsmith appealed to the angry crowd: "This is a silent protest." Kennedy McWhirter, manning the truck's loudspeaker, said later: "It was extremely interesting to see this supposedly non-violent organization turned to violence when the opposite point of view was put in words to them."

McWhirter described himself as an Oxford University scientist representing no political party. His brother, Norris, was identified as the driver of the sound truck.

FIVE KILLED BY SPEEDING TRAIN

'The Kids Didn't Have a Chance'

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Horror-stricken picknickers saw a speeding train plow through five children trapped on a lofty railroad trestle Sunday. All five died.

A sixth youngster raced to safety at one end of the mile-long viaduct moments ahead of the Southern Pacific's Sunset Limited.

Engineer J. W. Euforth braked in vain while scores of the 300 persons gathered for Easter Sunday picnics screamed for the four girls and one boy to jump.

The youngsters were caught about a quarter of a mile out on the bridge past a curve hiding the train's approach. At that point the viaduct towers 40 feet above the bed of the Medina River.

Among those gathered below to eat their noon meal in a park were about 50 relatives of the children.

Three children of Mrs. Paula Garza, San Antonio, and two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Ramirez, were killed. Ramirez is Mrs. Garza's brother.

The dead: Diana Garza, 11; Louis Garza, 12; Laura Garza, 16; Anna Maria Ramirez, 13; and Norma Ramirez, 15. Norma died at a hospital several hours later. The others were killed outright.

Manuel Ramirez, 12, scrambled off one end of the trestle seconds ahead of the train. Engineer Euforth said the train was travelling 60 miles an hour as it rounded the curve. "The kids didn't have a chance," he said. "There was no place for them to go..."

Mother Saves Two Children, Dies With Third

EASTVIEW, Ont. (CP)—A young mother today saved two of her children from their blazing apartment, then perished herself when she returned to get her third child.

Mrs. Jean-Guy Brunet, 22, hurried Denis, 4, and Michele, 3, from the apartment and business block in this suburb of Ottawa after a neighbor warned her the building was burning. She collapsed in the kitchen near the bedroom where Monique, 2, died in her crib clutching a doll.

Firemen found her burned body partly protected by a mattress with her arms outstretched towards the bedroom door.

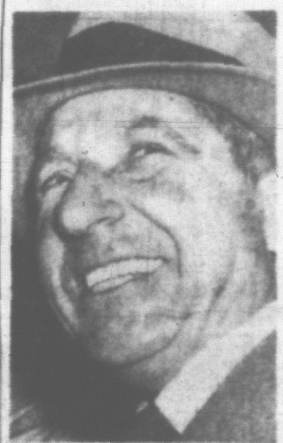

About 50 persons were successfully evacuated from the burning wood-and-brick siding building. Even as the front part of the building burned, residents dumped furniture, bedding and other belongings out rear windows into the street.

It took about an hour for firemen to bring the flames under control.

Rail Lines Hit

HALIFAX (CP)—Repair crews of the Dominion Atlantic Railway worked today to patch up lines washed out by the highest tides of the year.

Service between Truro and Windsor, N.S., is not expected to resume until Tuesday. A 200-foot section of track at South Maitland is washed out.

Costello Wins Fight to Keep Citizenship

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court today threw out denaturalization proceedings against New York racketeer Frank Costello.

The unanimous decision gave Costello a clear-cut victory in his fight against U.S. government efforts to cancel his 1925 naturalization and thus pave the way to deport him.

The court made no direct reference to a contention by Costello's lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams, that the government's case was "permeated by wire-tapping."

Until Saturday, when a five-year project of surveying, drilling, tunnelling, and laying explosives came to an end in a monstrous shower of water and

U.S. Air Crash Takes 47 Lives

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP)—A Capital Airlines Viscount airliner slammed into the mulch of an old corn field during an Easter snowstorm Sunday night, killing all 47 persons aboard.

A chief Civil Aeronautics Bureau inspector said today it probably will take at least the rest of the week to find out the cause of the crash.

The big plane, powered by four turbo-prop engines, plunged into the ground about 2,300 feet short of a Tri-City Airport runway. The airport serves Midland, Saginaw and Bay City.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Investigator Fred G. Powell said a preliminary investigation indicated the craft exploded after hitting the ground. He added, however, that it is too early to determine even a possible cause for the disaster, worst in the history of commercial aviation in Michigan.

Officials said there was "no chance" of escape from the four-engined turbo-prop plane. Some charred bodies were found in the shattered wreckage.

Others were scattered across a wide area. No Canadians were aboard the plane, bound from New York to Chicago via Michigan.

Tri-City Airport control tower officials said snow was falling as the plane approached for a landing. Visibility was three miles, the ceiling 900 feet at the time of the crash.

"By the time we got there, we realized everybody was gone," said Warner Law, owner of the farm on which the plane crashed. "There was no chance of anybody getting out. The plane came in hard. It didn't fall. It ran into the ground."

Nelson Girardin, who had stopped at the east central Michigan airport with his family to watch the plane land, said: "One minute the plane's lights were barely visible through the rain-snow... the next minute they abruptly headed earthward. A second later there was a blinding flash of orange flame spurring nearly 100 feet in the air, followed by a muffled explosion."

Girardin said the plane apparently landed "almost squarely on its nose," then flipped over on its back, a flaming mass of wreckage.

The crew was identified as Capt. W. J. Hull, 33, Washington Township, N.J.; First Officer Earle M. Binckley, 27, Levittown, N.Y.; and Ruth Denekke, 27, East Aurora, N.Y., the stewardess.

Civil Aeronautics authorities said it was the first major mishap to a Viscount in North America.

Capital Airlines said Hull was one of the airline's "million-mile" pilots. He had been with Capital since 1941.

Airline officials in Washington said the crash was the first Capital Airlines accident involving a passenger fatality since December, 1949, and the first killing a crew member in 4½ years.

CENTRED IN SOUTHERN ALASKA OR ALEUTIANS

Severe Earthquake Recorded Here

A "very severe" earthquake centred about 1,900 miles northwest of Victoria, possibly in southern Alaska or the Aleutians, was recorded on the seismograph of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory here today.

Dominion seismologist W. G. Milne said if the quake had occurred in a centre of population "it could have caused considerable havoc."

The earthquake was recorded starting at 7.36 a.m. city time and lasted about an hour.

There was little chance of it being felt in this area, Mr. Milne said. No reports were received from residents.

The earthquake was of 7.5 intensity on the Richter's scale of measurement. Largest on record is 8.5. In 1949 an earthquake on the Queen Charlotte Islands measured 8.

FREQUENT Earthquakes are frequent in the Pacific arc extending from the Aleutians to Alaska.

Reports of the quake were received from throughout the United States following the first report from Fairbanks, Alaska. The University of Alaska said it was the largest shock ever recorded on the university seismograph.

No damage was reported in the city, although light fixtures swayed and equipment tumbled from the shelves of the Fairbanks News-Miner newspaper office.

There is no immediate way of telling whether the shock core was offshore or on the mainland.

At Sitka, Alaska, the Coast and Geodetic Survey said the quake may have centred in the area where offshore shocks have caused heavy tidal waves in the past.

The biggest quake-triggered wave, April 1, 1946, took 173 lives, mostly in the Hawaiian Islands and caused an estimated $26,000,000 damage to the Islands. Another tidal wave, April 9 last year, did about $2,000,000 damage to the Hawaiian Islands.

Seismologists in the observatory at Oahu, Hawaii, said there was no danger of a tidal wave from the present earthquake.

Boat Mishap Fatal to 2

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP)—A happy Easter outing ended in tragedy Sunday when a small boat struck a log and capsized in Tongass Harbor, south of here. Two of the three persons aboard were drowned.

Dead are Dennis Hicks, 13, and Mrs. Dorothy Dundas. The dead boy's mother, Mrs. George Hicks, was rescued after she clung to the overturned boat two hours.

TEHRAN, Iran—The Shah of Iran Saturday night tearfully signed the final papers officially ending his seven-year marriage to young and beautiful Queen Soraya because she failed.

A court announcement said the divorce papers will be delivered to Soraya in Cologne, Germany, and that the shah may remarry within 100 days. But a court source said it would be longer than that before the saddened shah takes another bride, his third.

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C.—Retired Army Gen. James M. Gavin said Saturday the United States must do a lot better if it is to catch up with Russia in the race for outer space achievements.

"Look what the Russians have done. They've put a 1,100-pounder up there. Our biggest is only 34 pounds," Gavin said in an interview. "We have to do better, a lot better," he remarked.

Gavin commented that he believes the world is just on the threshold of space achievements and that this country has barely put its toe across that threshold.

rock, ships were confined to one side of the channel. Deviation from their course put them in the way of the underwater mountain of Ripple Rock, and when there were two ships meeting in the narrows, it was decidedly perilous.

Now, with a minimum of 47 feet of water over the rock at low tide, ships can use the whole of the 2,500-foot channel.

A mass of information recorded on seismographs at the blast scene, elsewhere on Vancouver Island, and throughout B.C. will be collected at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, according to W. G. Milne, observatory seismologist. Films must be developed before any actual information can be studied, Mr. Milne said.

DIDN'T SEE BLAST

"I didn't even see the blast," he said. "I was at the bottom of the Quadra Island bunker when it went off."

The shock wave from the blast was recorded at Edmonton, but it was doubted whether it would be noted beyond that point. It failed to register at Montreal.

Evaluation of the explosion recordings by six Alberta seismograph crews was to be made in a special meeting at Calgary this afternoon of the Canadian Society of Exploration Geophysicists, Dr. D. C. Skeels, chairman of the international geophysical year committee of CSEG.

"At least two or three usable recordings will be available for immediate study," Dr. Skeels said, "but a complete report cannot be issued until the Dominion observatory in Ottawa has made a study of the integrated reports submitted by all groups involved in recording the shock waves travelling below the earth's surface."

Fate of fish in the area has not yet been determined fully, but early reports indicate that they fared better than was anticipated and that only "minor damage" occurred.

DEAD FISH FOUND

Dr. Andrew Needler of the Pacific Biological Station, Nanaimo, said that 30 minutes after the blast only 80 dead fish could be found, and all were varieties of rock cod. There were no salmon or herring found.

Among other casualties were a seagull seen flying over the rock three seconds before blast time, and two diving birds found dead by investigators.

Fortunate survivors were five killer whales which were seen "sauntering" south toward the rock before the blast and hurrying north after it, two sea lions, a fur seal and a school of porpoises.

Most interest, however, centred in fish set out in cages at fixed distances from the blast scene, and full reports were not available until later this week.

City Sportsman Dies During Golf Tournament

Well-known city sportsman and provincial government employee, William Walter Levy, 43, of 4285 Quadra, died in St. Joseph's Hospital about 10.45 a.m. today after collapsing on the Gorge Vale golf course during a B.C. Government Employees' Association tournament.

Born and educated in Victoria, he had worked in the land registry office for many years. He had been active playing softball and was in demand as a basketball referee. As well, he had been a member of the Victoria Horticultural Society and was a member of Mount Newton A.F. AM.

Survivors include the widow, Patricia; son Dennis, and daughter Keren; his father, W. G. Levy; brother Gordon, and sister Amelia, all of Victoria.

Sands Mortuary will handle funeral arrangements, to be announced later.

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson countered that the report was not "hidden"; that it had been in the hands of the Conservative government for months. He charged that Mr. Diefenbaker had abused the civil service by bringing the name of a civil servant into public controversy and by making public a report that had been made by a civil servant in confidence.

Mr. Sharp is considered by his colleagues as one of Canada's top civil servants. He has worked out a number of tariff, trade and wheat agreements for Canada and figured largely in the development of a trade agreement with Russia in late 1955. It was signed Feb. 29, 1956.

Before joining the trade department he was director of the finance department's economic policy division. During the war he was liaison officer between the finance minister and the wartime prices and trade board.

He had been an executive director of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and director of the Commodity Prices Stabilization Corporation. In discussions leading up to Newfoundland's entry into Confederation in 1949 he was chairman of a sub-committee on finance and economic policy.

Stocks Continuing Slight Downtrend

Virtually all categories of stocks continued to lose ground today in trading that was described as "fairly active."

Metals, mines and oil led the way down but in no cases could the decline be described as sensational.

The knock-down on prices at Wall Street brought an early rush of trading that at one point left the ticker-tape a minute behind.

AT VANCOUVER light trading saw little price change during the forenoon.

Craigmont sold 3,000 at $3.10. Highland Belle moved 2,000 at $1.45. Bethlehem Copper traded 1,000 at 95. Canam Copper moved 1,100 at 25.

AT MONTREAL industrial trading remained light today as prices were mixed to lower.

Leading the decline were the base metals and refining oils, while on the firmer side were banks and miscellaneous stocks.

Bank of Montreal improved 1/4 to 42 and Industrial Acceptance gained 1/2 to 30.

Steels and papers were mixed and utilities were unchanged to a little lower.

Among the mines and oils trading was heavy with losses predominating. Steep Rock dropped 20 cents to 9.50 and Central Del Rio lost 15 cents to 7.20.

Industrial volume was 19,400 shares; mines and oils 372,200.

AT NEW YORK steel edged lower as values continued to decline in fairly active trading late afternoon.

The ticker tape was a minute behind transactions for a period of two minutes at the opening when prices were knocked down in a selling burst.

300 'Knights of Air' Of First War Meet

TORONTO (CP)—A dwindling band of men who fought forced him from the service in July, 1918.

C. W. Dingwall, of Toronto, was one of the first Canadian service pilots, joining the RCAF in 1911 and training in a shakedown aircraft called the G and W box province in Canada.

They are veterans of the Royal Flying Corps and the Royal Naval Air Service, some of whom paid their way into the skies during the First World War.

They call themselves the knights because they were among the last of the fighting men to take the code of chivalry into combat when war was a personal thing.

The rode to battle in the stubby Spad, a Sopwith Camel or a Nieuport.

FATHER PAID $400 J. A. Morell, of Toronto, was among those who paid for the privilege, explaining that in 1916 the RNAS was taking only qualified pilots.

"My father agreed to pay the $400 tuition fee because he thought I'd give it up after the first lesson," he said in an interview.

"It flew at about 30 miles an hour and had a stalling speed of about 30. It was a terrible thing."

WIDE VARIETY OF PICTURES TELL ROCK BLAST STORY

In the nine seconds it took for Ripple Rock to blow "sky high," an infinite variety of photographs showing the awesome beauty of the spectacle were captured by scores of news and private cameramen.

Almost every "still" picture is different, with a fraction of a second making the difference, along with varied exposures and shutter speeds which changed shadings and density of the blast details recorded on

RIPPLE ROCK WARNING IGNORED

Metal Plaque to Record 'Daring'

The blast was over in seconds but the stories are still erupting. Campbell River residents Bill Aldridge and Ed McCabe claim they were the only two close-up, unauthorized witnesses to the Ripple Rock blast Saturday —and they are putting up a metal plaque to record their daring. Aldridge, a lift operator in the pre-explosion tunnels beneath Ripple Rock, and rancher McCabe built a secret bomb shelter overlooking the scene.

MONTE ROBERTS

REQUIEM FOR A ROCK

Alas, poor Ripple! Alas, alas, alas, And alas, from all who knew him well. And all who knew him well, wished him well. Well out of the way. Alas, poor Ripple, he who did no active harm, he who raised no hand in anger, fired no gun nor wielded knife nor knuckles brass. But just sat there. Just sat there, and was he to blame when voyageurs of little skill, Bounced off his noggin, chipping pieces off his top, with their metal hulls? Posterity will say, was he to blame or not to blame, but public opinion of the court of NOW has said its say. And before the bar of this cruel court, alas, Ripple was found guilty, and sentenced. Sentenced to disintegration, to be watched by all the nation. Thus came the end, alas, of Ripple, he who arose out of the crust of the earth as it cooled its fire when cast out as a satellite of the sun. He who sat serenely while the salt waves of the ocean changed him from a minor mountain to a major undersea menace—as the cruel court of public opinion termed him. He who sat serenely, just sat there. Until the time has come to produce the small notice for the back pages of the newspaper: "Ripple Rock. Born when the earth was born, died, when man decreed." And with his death, his name has changed. No longer Ripple Rock, but, R.I.P., Rock.

tists' bunkers about 3,000 feet from the blast. They climbed to their hide-out Friday night and stayed there until blast time, 9.31 a.m. Saturday. Aldridge says he will return to the shelter to mount a metal plaque naming them as history-making "stowaways."

Ripple Rock got an appropriate farewell before being torn apart. Flags above the distinguished spectators' bunker 7,000 feet from blast site were arranged to read in marine signal code: "Goodbye Dangerous Ripple Rock."

Workmen's Compensation Board safety inspector John Coggins says there wasn't a serious accident during the 27 months of hard-rock tunnelling which preceded the blast. He made 14 trips to the scene, praised Col. Cy North, project manager and superintendents Bill Grieve and Jack Buchanan.

The man who pushed the button and blew the twin peaks of Ripple Rock into pebbles, Dr.

New Supervisors For Ground Observer Corps

RCAP Ground Observer Corps headquarters today announced appointment of two Vancouver Island men as regional supervisors. Douglas Strank, of Cumberland, will be responsible for eight observation posts between Courtenay and Qualicum Beach. John Sanders, of Chemainus, will be responsible for 12 posts from Cowichan Lake area to Cobble Hill.

Victor Dolmage, said he never had any doubts about the success of the blast. He called it "... the smoothest job ever performed." His firm was employed as consultant engineers on the $3,100,000 project.

The boom may be over for Campbell River in more than one sense. Sightseers and technicians who crammed the upcoast village for the blast departed with its echoes. Vacancy signs went up again on motels and guest houses.

Tourist season is still to come, but in the backs of many minds is the thought that the B.C. Power Commission Upper Campbell dam project is slated for completion this summer. Hundreds of men will have to seek new jobs. Power projects have been almost constantly under way since 1946—John Hart, Ladore and Buttle-Upper Campbell.

Perhaps the big blast didn't shake urban areas—but it cleared the streets in Victoria.

Residents stayed close to TV screens at zero hour. Main streets put on their Sunday appearance.

Owner of Adams Resort, Milton Adams, ignored instructions to leave his location 2 1/2 miles from Ripple Rock. Instead took refuge in a natural granite bunker with his wife, children and six guests. He said rock rained down within 1,000 feet. Fifteen tame deer which frequent his property have swarmed by, acting "quite funny."

Rock landed also on Wilfred Point and Maud Island on either side of Seymour Narrows and some trees were knocked down.

CGS Parry, a hydrographic survey boat moored at Menzies Bay was rocked by heavy waves following the blast. A ramp on a wharf was loosened.

Two photographers slipped past RCMP guards to get explosion pictures. They landed a seaplane at a Quadra Island beach, set up their cameras, then missed the explosion. Thinking it was cancelled, they hiked up a nearby bluff. The show was over when they returned to their vantage point.

A young seaman from HMCS Fortune in RCN Hospital with internal injuries following a freak accident at Port Renfrew late last Wednesday, still is in serious condition, it was learned today.

AB K. H. Barlow was rushed by naval ambulance in the middle of the night to Naden Hospital. According to unofficial reports the man fell on his closed fist as he jumped from the ship's deck to the government jetty shortly before midnight.

PERFECT HOLIDAY CONDITIONS on the weekend were marred by vandalism at Beacon Hill Park. Smashing of 28 panes of glass in the park lookout was included. Here caretaker H. W. Hayton examines one of windows. Other damage included park benches pushed into the lake, flower beds torn up, and life preservers removed from strategic points. (Robin Clarke photo).

Holidayers Flocked To Churches, Parks

Winter "hibernation" officially ended Sunday for thousands of Victorians who donned their Easter finery for church services, then took to the roads for a sunny afternoon at the beaches, parks and golf courses.

High temperature recorded here Sunday was 61 degrees, weatherman Bill Mackie said. In the interior the temperature reached 67 degrees in Abbotsford and a balmy 68 in Hope.

Seven services in Christ Church Cathedral were attended by capacity crowds. Latecomers were shown to chairs along the walls and at the rear of the church.

Other churches also reported heavy attendance. After church, Victorians really got down to the business of pleasure.

Cars packed the Island Highway leading from Victoria as sun-seekers headed for up-island beauty spots. Locally, hundreds basked in the sun at Willows and other beaches, at neighboring lakes and parks.

Park CROWDED Picnickers thronged into Beacon Hill Park to spend a leisurely afternoon strolling along flower-lined paths and lunching beneath the trees.

Spectators by the score lined the course at Victoria Golf Club to see the Times' Vancouver Island match play open golf tournament. Other city courses were crowded.

Weatherman Mackie today could see no let-up in the sunny weather that has bathed Victoria for a week.

No Suspects In Child Attack Three-year-old Charlene Dick, victim of a vicious beating Thursday afternoon outside her aunt's home at 2976 Colquitz, is in "satisfactory condition" at Jubilee Hospital today, and police report no suspects have been located.

The child suffered 14 to 20 rib fractures, partially collapsed lungs, bruises and abrasions in an attack which her aunt said was made by two boys about seven or eight years old.

RCMP said the westbound car missed a curve at Gillespie Road, went off the highway, struck a pole and rolled the rest of the way over the incline.

Saturday at about 3.20 p.m. cyclist Eddie Strelow, 11 of 1837 Fairfield, received minor leg injuries when his bike was in collision with a car driven at the Fountain Circle by Paladine Kudra, 2331 Nanaimo.

The motorist took the boy to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was treated and discharged.

V.I. Farms Welcome New Price Supports

Incentive to Maintain Butter, Egg Production

A B.C. farm organization official said higher price supports announced in Ottawa today will encourage farmers here to maintain production of butter and eggs.

Charles Walls, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, said declining profits have reduced farm production of butter to a low level.

The higher floor prices will protect producers from suffering losses but will not necessarily mean increased retail prices to consumers, he said.

GAGLARDI SHIFTING INTO REVERSE

Highways Minister Philip Gagliardi has given his engineers a novel set of marching orders—go back 100 years.

Department engineers now are scouting old yards and warehouses throughout the province for every horse-drawn shovel and hand-operated tool they can find.

But the hunt isn't an all-out attempt to find the reserves for one massive campaign of annihilation against all potholes and bumps on B.C. roads.

Mr. Gagliardi wants the "museum pieces" for a display, under his personal direction, at the B.C. International Trade Fair, opening May 1.

Entitled "Panorama of Highway Progress," it will show the vast improvement—in highway equipment—since pioneer days.

Vic High Teacher To Attend Seminar at UBC

Victoria High School teacher D. E. Smith will attend the province's first high school counsellors' seminar at the University of British Columbia, opening Thursday.

Arts and Science Dean S. N. F. Chant and J. J. Carson, B.C. Electric industrial relations director, will address the three-day meeting.

The conference, sponsored by the UBC counselling and placement department in co-operation with the faculty of education and the B.C. department of education, is supported through a grant from the International Nickel Company of Canada Limited.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Could you please tell me how to get rid of ants which are invading our home?

A. There are many reputable insecticides particularly formulated to combat ants. These are available from most hardware, feed and drug stores, varying in price upwards from as little as 25 cents. These are for both home and outdoor use, depending on the type. However, if possible, the best bet is to find the source of ants outside and destroy the nest or nests. In your cupboards, keep sugar and salt tightly covered. They attract the pests.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

Flower-Scented Cards
Just Like the Real Thing!

By PENNY SAVER

Mmm-m! What a delightful scent! I'm talking about the new authentically scented floral cards. These beautiful (and almost real looking) masterpieces have roses, carnations, and a dozen other types of posies painted in pastels on the covers and, as you open the outer leaf, a bouquet of posies pops out, and you get a whiff of the true scent of the actual flower—that are on the card.

I took a sniff at the carnation card and it was exactly like the real thing. Wonderful to send to a sick friend, eh? They're priced at 25 cents each!

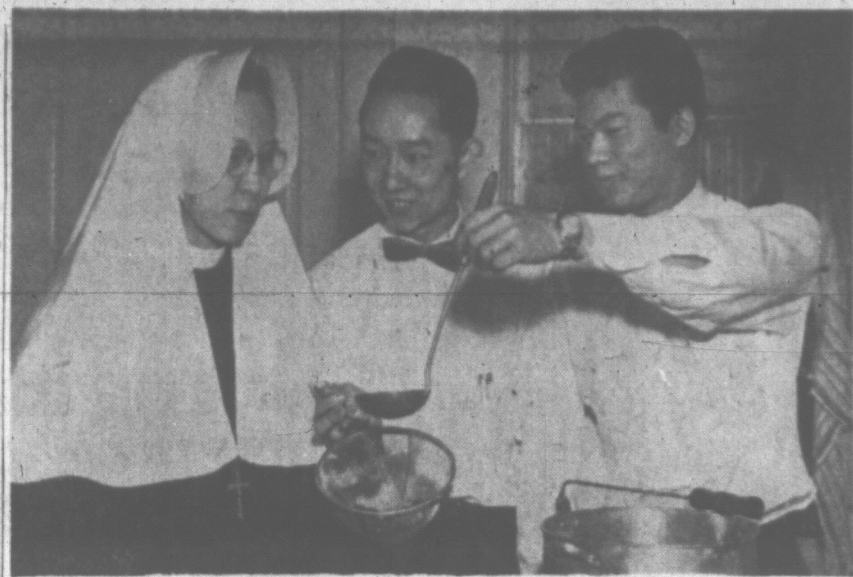

Find letter writing paper just a little dull? Then you're the one who would go for hand-painted floral stationery. To make it more interesting, the paintings on this notepaper are reproductions by Emily Sartain, world famous artist (who by the way is a Victorian).

For centennial year, a selection of notepaper has arrived bearing the four better known British Columbia wild flowers, the dog-tooth lily, shooting star, blue camass and the Indian paint brush. Reproduced from Miss Sartain's paintings, these lovely examples of her work are tasteful and attractive for letter writing. A box of 12 is priced at $1.

Also in the collection of stationery by Miss Sartain I found reproductions of English wild flowers. Such beauties as the field poppy, ox-eye daisy and the bee orchid (so well known to our friends from overseas) have been so well painted you'd think the flowers were real! These are also $1 a box.

Did you know that there is nothing quite so useful as a gift of stationery for a friend with a birthday? Well, you know now!

From the sunny islands of Fiji come women's silk and cotton pyjamas. These ever so attractive garments for spring and summer wear have colorful embroidery on collar and

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Winter Winds Rough on Skin; Recondition Now

As you can tell, spring is really with us! Or if you live where it has not yet arrived, you can sense its approach. Today let me remind you of a few reconditioning jobs you now have practically on your doorstep. In the first place, your outer coating has taken a beating from the drying, roughening winds and cold weather. Why not give that complexion of yours some special treatment?

Every one of us is neglectful at times about skin lubrication. Be sincerely faithful about it for a few weeks and watch your complexion bloom. Perhaps you do not use an oily cream as a year-round habit. If this is so, at least dunk your face and neck with one which is truly lubricating after these past cold months. You might also try one of the wonderful oils which are available.

Heels which are fairly smooth in moderate weather may be very rough and scaly after a cold season. This is certain to be true unless you have given them constant care during the winter months, and few women do. Remember that skimpily summer shoes and play shoes will soon be with us and nothing could be more unattractive than roughened heels and scaly cuticle about the toes.

If you will massage cream or a softening body lotion into the heels and around the toes for a few weeks, you will be surprised at the difference it will make in foot charm, come summer.

Our elbows also show the effects of drying weather. Give them the same treatment. A fairly rough wash cloth should be used on both heels and elbows when you take your bath.

If you would like my leaflet "Your Outer Coating" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 47 to Josephine Lowman in care of this paper.

Veronica Cuff Exchanges Vows With C. D. L. Foxall

In a nuptial mass this morning at Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Oak Bay, Miss Veronica Catherine Cuff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Cuff of Arrow Road, became the bride of Charles Derek L. Foxall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie L. Foxall of Koksilah, B.C.

Yellow and white carnations and iris decorated the church for the wedding which was conducted by Rev. Father M. J. McNamara.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of delustrated satin. The off-shoulder neckline was styled in a sweetheart shape and the long sleeves were lily-point. The bodice was simply fitted extending in a long torso to the hipline. The full skirt swept gracefully to a slight train from a deep V at the back.

A coronet of apple blossoms held the finger-tip veil which

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

Guests arrive; phone rings. I live in a small apartment and have the telephone in my living room. I never know what to do if I have to answer the phone while guests are present. Occasionally I get business calls that can be rather lengthy and sometimes I get calls from friends who like to chat. Is my first obligation to the person on the other end of the line or to my guests, and, if it is to my guests, how can I manage to ring off politely?

Louise Davis answers:

Your first obligation is to your guests whether they drop in without warning or by invitation. Even if your phone should be in another room, it would be rude and inconsiderate to carry on a conversation, business or otherwise. As long as you have guests, your hospitality is uppermost and you wouldn't want to keep them waiting or inflict your conversation on them. If friends like you well enough to want to make a call, you don't want to let them down by giving your time to someone on the telephone. Unless your phone call is urgent or extremely brief, it would be a simple matter to say, "John and Mary Smith dropped in for a call and, if you don't mind, may I call you back?" I am sure that you will find very few calls that can't wait.

TEST PROVES SUCCESS

Skipper Sails
Over Blasted
Rock Stump

By DON INGHAM

Proof of the value of the $3,100,000 Ripple Rock blast Saturday was provided by a daring coastwise skipper who sailed his vessel directly over the battered stump of the once-dreaded navigation menace in Seymour Narrows.

Shortly after noon Saturday, at high water slack just three hours after the eruption of the rock in the world's largest peace-time non-atomic blast, Captain Henry Hall became the first man to take a large boat through the "revised" narrows.

"With echo sounder operating, he took the Northland Navigation Company's Squamish Queen over the spot.

"I made the water out to be 56 feet under me," he said. "But I don't know how accurate the sounder was, because even then the water was still full of air bubbles."

Captain Hall, a veteran of the narrows, said he noticed no great change.

"But the difference will be noticed in bigger ships," he said. "The tides will still be as fierce, but there will be more room for navigation."

Until Saturday, when a five-year project of surveying, drilling, tunnelling, and laying explosives came to an end in a monstrous shower of water and

Were All Related

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A car-train crash near Sherbrooke, Que., in which 11 persons, all related, were killed, sent Canada's accidental death toll for the three-day Easter holiday soaring to at least 48. Seven of the Quebec crash dead were children.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local time Thursday until midnight Sunday showed 35 persons died in traffic mishaps. There were four drownings—three in Ontario one in Quebec—and two fire deaths, one in Ontario, one in Manitoba.

Quebec reported the highest number of deaths—21, 18 in traffic. The 11 dead in the level-crossing accident were all in one car returning from an Easter Sunday outing. No one aboard the train was injured.

MAIN LINE BLOCKED

The crash halted all railway traffic on the CPR's Montreal-Maritime mainline. Killed were: Elodora Larose, 38, of Waterloo, Que., his wife, 38, and their five children, Ronald, 14, Ginette, 12, Jean Pierre, 9, Alain, 5, and Andre, 2.

Jean Claude Roy, 27, of Joliette, Que.; his wife, 23, and their two children, Marcel, 4, and Micheline 3. The two families were related.

Mrs. Axel Setter and daughter Darlene, 14, of Spirit River, Alta., along with Louis Vektor, 51, of Edmonton, died in a two-car collision Friday near Ponoka, 60 miles south of Edmonton.

British Columbia's violent deaths occurred Saturday.

A two-car collision near Burnaby took the life of Joe Webster. Andrew Heavenor, 37, fell seven storeys over a railing in a downtown Vancouver hotel.

Vancouver Island police reported a fatality-free holiday, although there were a number of traffic accidents and several persons injured.

Storms Lash U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stormy weather, with snow, rain and strong winds, pounded the north-east section of the United States today following weather which dampened most of the country Easter Sunday.

U.S. Air Crash
Takes 47 Lives

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP)—A Capital Airlines Viscount airliner slammed into the mulch of an old corn field during an Easter snowstorm Sunday night, killing all 47 persons aboard.

A chief Civil Aeronautics Bureau inspector said today it probably will take at least the rest of the week to find out the cause of the crash.

The big plane, powered by four turbo-prop engines, plunged into the ground about 2,300 feet short of a Tri-City Airport runway. The airport serves Midland, Saginaw and Bay City.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Investigator Fred G. Powell said a preliminary investigation indicated the craft exploded after hitting the ground. He added, however, that it is too early to determine even a possible cause for the disaster, worst in the history of commercial aviation in Michigan.

Officials said there was "no chance" of escape from the four-engined turbo-prop plane. Some charred bodies were found in the shattered wreckage. Others were scattered across a wide area.

No Canadians were aboard the plane, bound from New York to Chicago via Michigan. Tri-City Airport control tower officials said snow was falling as the plane approached for a landing. Visibility was three miles, the ceiling 900 feet at the time of the crash.

"By the time we got there, we realized everybody was gone," said Warner Law, owner of the farm on which the plane crashed. "There was no chance of anybody getting out. The plane came in hard. It didn't fall. It ran into the ground."

Nelson Girardin, who had stopped at the east central Michigan airport with his family to watch the plane land, said: "One minute the plane's lights were barely visible through the rain-snow... the next minute they abruptly headed earthward. A second later there was a blinding flash of orange flame spurring nearly 100 feet in the air, followed by a muffled explosion."

Girardin said the plane apparently landed "almost squarely on its nose," then flipped over on its back, a flaming mass of wreckage.

The crew was identified as Capt. W. J. Hull, 33, Washington Township, N.J.; First Officer Earle M. Binckley, 27, Levittown, N.Y.; and Ruth Denecke, 27, East Aurora, N.Y., the stewardess.

Civil Aeronautics authorities said it was the first major mishap to a Viscount in North America.

Capital Airlines said Hull was one of the airline's "million-mile" pilots. He had been with Capital since 1941.

Airline officials in Washington said the crash was the first Capital Airlines accident involving a passenger fatality since December, 1949, and the first killing a crew member in 4½ years.

Costello Wins Fight to Keep Citizenship

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court today threw out denaturalization proceedings against New York racketeer Frank Costello.

The unanimous decision gave Costello a clear-cut victory in his fight against U.S. government efforts to cancel his 1925 naturalization and thus pave the way to deport him.

The court made no direct reference to a contention by Costello's lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams, that the government's case was "permeated by wiretapping."

Costello had appealed to the Supreme Court from a decision by the U.S. circuit court in New York that the government's denaturalization case had been dismissed erroneously.

Deputy Out
In Row With
Ottawa Gov'tBy VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Mitchell W. Sharp, deputy minister of trade and commerce, one of the ablest senior members of the federal civil service is resigning his government post.

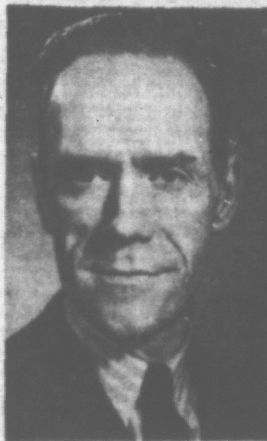

Mr. Sharp's resignation will be effective at the end of April. The deputy minister who has been closely associated with the federal government's wheat policies over a number of years as well as administering trade and commerce policies has had a number of attractive offers from private firms. Mr. Sharp declined to confirm or deny he would be leaving the government's service.

"I have no comment, it will all come out in due course," he said.

Trade Minister Gordon Churchill said he had already granted Mr. Sharp a month's leave of absence effective March 31.

However, Mr. Churchill disclosed he had received at noon a copy of Mr. Sharp's resignation letter which was addressed to Prime Minister John Diefenbaker.

There has been a great deal of speculation ever since the Conservative government first took office last June that it would make several changes involving personnel in the public service, once it obtained a safe majority. There were rumors after the June election that more than one key civil servant would find conditions such that he would prefer to resign after the Conservatives assumed office with a large majority.

While not wishing to leave the public service, Mr. Sharp was understood to be ready to resign if he did not have the full confidence of the new government. The fact that he is resigning would indicate that Mr. Churchill has made no effort to retain Mr. Sharp in the public service.

No Decision on Successor

Mr. Churchill declined to comment on a possible successor. He said he naturally had given the matter some thought but he had no statement to make at this time.

Mr. Sharp's resignation will probably be followed by others. During the last session of parliament there were rumblings among the private members on the government side that suggested that more than one prominent member of the civil service would find a less than congenial atmosphere in which to work. A. D. McPhillips, Progressive Conservative member for Victoria, B.C., made a speech in the Commons in which he attacked some members of the federal civil service claiming that they had worked too long with the Liberal administration and should be shifted out of their posts.

Under such circumstances more than one member of the civil service is reported to be giving serious consideration to lucrative offers from private business or industry when they are made.

Mr. Sharp has been in government service for 16 years, first with the department of finance and then with the trade department. He was appointed assistant deputy trade minister in 1950. The following year he became associate deputy minister, taking over the top trade department civil service post of deputy minister last year.

Mr. Sharp's signature was on the controversial "hidden report" which Prime Minister Diefenbaker maintained gave the former Liberal administration an indication that trade recession was beginning early last year.

Mother Saves 2 Tots,
Dies With 3rd in Fire

EASTVIEW, Ont. (CP)—A young mother today saved two of her children from their blazing apartment, then perished herself when she returned to get her third child.

Mrs. Jean-Guy Brunet, 22, hurried Denis, 4, and Michele, 3, from the apartment and business block in this suburb of Ottawa after a neighbor warned her the building was burning. She collapsed in the kitchen near the bedroom where Monique, 2, died in her crib clutching a doll.

Firemen found her burned body partly protected by a mattress with her arms outstretched towards the bedroom door.

About 50 persons were successfully evacuated from the burning wood-and-brick siding building. Even as the front part of the building burned, residents dumped furniture, bedding and other belongings out rear windows into the street.

It took about an hour for firemen to bring the flames under control.

People and Things

TEHRAN, Iran—The Shah of Iran Saturday night tearfully signed the final papers officially ending his seven-year marriage to young and beautiful Queen Soraya because she failed to give him a male heir.

A court announcement said the divorce papers will be delivered to Soraya in Cologne, Germany, and that the shah may remarry within 100 days. But a court source said it would be longer than that before the saddened shah takes another bride, his third.

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C.—Retired Army Gen. James M. Gavin said Saturday the United States must do a lot better if it is to catch up with Russia in the race for outer space achievements.

"Look what the Russians have done. They've put a 1,100-pounder up there. Our biggest is only 34 pounds," Gavin said in an interview. "We have to do better, a lot better," he remarked.

Gavin commented that he believes the world is just on the threshold of space achievements and that this country has barely put its toe across that threshold.

A Washington law firm plans to file a court petition this week seeking to free the 72-year-old poet from the mental hospital where he has been confined since 1946 when he was ruled incompetent to stand trial for treason.

The firm said it would institute the motion without fee at the request of poet Robert Frost. The motion will seek against Pound.

rock, ships were confined to one side of the channel. Deviation from their course put them in the way of the underwater mountain of Ripple Rock, and when there were two ships meeting in the narrows, it was decidedly perilous.

Now, with a minimum of 47 feet of water over the rock at low tide, ships can use the whole of the 2,500-foot channel.

A mass of information recorded on seismographs at the blast scene, elsewhere on Vancouver Island, and throughout B.C. will be collected at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, according to W. G. Milne, observatory seismologist. Films must be developed before any actual information can be studied, Mr. Milne said.

DIDN'T SEE BLAST

"I didn't even see the blast," he said. "I was at the bottom of the Quadra Island bunker when it went off."

The shock wave from the blast was recorded at Edmonton, but it was doubted whether it would be noted beyond that point. It failed to register at Montreal.

Evaluation of the explosion recordings by six Alberta seismograph crews was to be made in a special meeting at Calgary this afternoon at the Canadian Society of Exploration Geophysicists, Dr. D. C. Skeels, chairman of the international geophysical year committee of CSEG.

"At least two or three usable recordings will be available for immediate study," Dr. Skeels said, "but a complete report cannot be issued until the Dominion observatory in Ottawa has made a study of the integrated reports submitted by all groups involved in recording the shock waves travelling below the earth's surface."

Fate of fish in the area has not yet been determined fully, but early reports indicate that they fared better than was anticipated and that only "minor damage" occurred.

DEAD FISH FOUND

Dr. Andrew Needler of the Pacific Biological Station, Nanaimo, said that 30 minutes after the blast only 80 dead fish could be found, and all were varieties of rock cod. There were no salmon or herring found.

Among other casualties were a seagull seen flying over the rock three seconds before blast time, and two diving birds found dead by investigators.

Fortunate survivors were five killer whales which were seen "sauntering" south toward the rock before the blast and hurrying north after it. Two sea lions, a fur seal and a school of porpoises.

Most interest, however, centred in fish set out in cages at fixed distances from the blast scene, and full reports were not available until later this week.

City Sportsman Dies During Golf Tournament

Well-known city sportsman and provincial government employee, William Walter Levy, 43, of 4285 Quadra, died in St. Joseph's Hospital about 10.45 a.m. today after collapsing on the Gorge Vale golf course during a B.C. Government Employees' Association tournament.

Born and educated in Victoria, he had worked in the land registry office for many years. He had been active playing softball and was in demand as a basketball referee. As well, he had been a member of the Victoria Horticultural Society and was a member of Mount Newton AF AM.

Survivors include the widow, Patricia; son Dennis, and daughter Keren; his father, W. G. Levy; brother Gordon, and sister Amelia, all of Victoria.

Sands Mortuary will handle funeral arrangements, to be announced later.

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson countered that the report was not "hidden"; that it had been in the hands of the Conservative government for months. He charged that Mr. Diefenbaker had abused the name of a civil servant into public controversy and by making public a report that had been made by a civil servant in confidence.

Mr. Sharp is considered by his colleagues as one of Canada's top civil servants. He has worked out a number of tariff, trade and wheat agreements for Canada and figured largely in the development of a trade agreement with Russia in late 1955. It was signed Feb. 29, 1956.

Before joining the trade department he was director of the finance department's economic policy division. During the war he was liaison officer between the finance minister and the wartime prices and trade board.

He had been an executive director of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and director of the Commodity Prices Stabilization Corporation. In discussions leading up to Newfoundland's entry into Confederation in 1949 he was chairman of a sub-committee on finance and economic policy.

'Bill of Rights' Urged For Sportsmen in B.C.

CHEMAMUS — A "Sportsmen's Bill of Rights" is badly needed in B.C., district fisheries biologist Dave Hurn of Nanaimo told the Rotary Club here.

Historically, he said, citizens had always understood the re- sources of the country belonged to them. They had assumed the right to hunt and fish wherever they wanted. However pressures of the recreational use of these resources are growing at a tremendous rate and these assumed rights are bumping up against those rights assumed by landowners and businessmen.

Mr. Hurn said he felt the natural resources, fish, game, wildlife and scenic beauty, belonged to the people at large, and not vested interests.

AFFECTS ALL

In 1957 the value of B.C.'s natural resources to the economy of the province was $104,000,000.

"This had some affect on all of us," he said.

Another problem facing the sportsman is that of access. On Vancouver Island, 95 per cent of hunting and fishing pressure takes place within the E and N land belt, only 3 per cent of which is Crown land.

While the province owns all the waters in B.C., the bottoms in the E and N belt belong to the railway company, causing an access problem, he said.

In many places on the Island, good hunting and fishing areas are closed to sportsmen because the lands around them are privately held.

The Highland district near Victoria is a good example. Although there are several good lakes in the area only 13 miles from the city, they are seldom used because the land around them is private, Mr. Hurn said.

In the near future there is going to have to be a resolution permitting sportsmen to hunt and fish for resources which are rightfully theirs, he said.

'Ban-Bomb' Marchers Attack Truck, Driver

ALDERMASTON, England (Reuters)—A four-day, 50-mile "Ban the H-bomb" procession ended in a sudden explosion of violence today as marchers forcibly silenced a public address truck attacking them and punched its driver.

As the marchers neared their goal, Britain's nuclear weapons research centre, the truck rolled ahead of them with its loud-speaker blaring: "You are voting with your feet for Soviet imperialist domination."

Marchers unplugged the loud-speaker and pulled it down. They rocked the truck from side to side, denting its luggage compartment and smashing a tail light. The driver was punched and marchers attempted to drag him out of the truck.

A stone was thrown at the sound truck as police fought to keep back about 5,000 marchers and 4,000 spectators milling around in a field near the research centre. Demonstrators wrenched open the truck's back door and ripped up documents inside it.

Severe Earthquake Recorded in City

A "very severe" earthquake centred about 1,900 miles northwest of Victoria, possibly in southern Alaska or the Aleutians, was recorded on the seismograph of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory here today.

Dominion seismologist W. G. Milne said if the quake had occurred in a centre of population "it could have caused considerable havoc."

The earthquake was recorded starting at 7.36 a.m. city time and lasted about an hour.

There was little chance of it being felt in this area, Mr. Milne said. No reports were received from residents.

The earthquake was of 7.5 intensity on the Richter's scale of measurement. Largest on record is 8.5. In 1949 an earth tremor on the Queen Charlotte Islands measured 8.

Earthquakes are frequent in the Pacific area extending from the Aleutians to Alaska. Reports of the quake were received from throughout the United States following the first report from Fairbanks, Alaska.

Hotel at Westview Looted of $5,000

POWELL RIVER, B.C. (CP)—Thieves stole a 500-pound safe containing about $5,000 in cash and cheques from the Marine Hotel at nearby Westview at the weekend. Roadblocks were set up by RCMP

Chief Clarkson's investigation disclosed that his seven-year-old boy was one of three children responsible for lighting fires under Cowichan High School Thursday. He said he was certain they did not realize the possible consequences.

"But if the fire marshal decides to lay charges it's all right with me," he said. "It might throw a scare into my son, who I must admit is a regular little firebug. Fire fascinates him."

The boys were exploring labyrinth of passages under school and lit tarpaper torch that caused smoke to issue from vents in the building. An alarm was turned in at 2 p.m. there was no damage.
